

Enemy Toll High in Delta

American Army-Navy Force Also Suffers Heavy Losses

SAIGON (AP) — An American Army-Navy task force pushing into the guerrilla-infested Mekong Delta was reported today to have killed 169 Viet Cong in a fierce night battle only 19 miles south of Saigon.

Twenty-eight American infantrymen were killed in the battle, 126 soldiers and sailors were wounded, and four American helicopters were shot down, the U.S. Command said.

The battle erupted as the soldiers and Navy river assault forces pushed up a near-flooded paddy area along the Rach Hui River a few hours before dusk Monday. Heavy fighting raged until midnight, then fell off, but new skirmishes were reported today as the men of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division continued the sweep.

Other Battles

The battle was one of several Monday. A Marine landing force in the northern 1st Corps area reported killing 51 Communists in one fight, and U.S. air cavalrymen said they killed 34 Reds in coastal Binh Dinh Province. Thirteen Americans were reported killed in the two actions.

Heavy air strikes against North Vietnam continued Monday with a concentration of raids on Hanoi's rail supply lines.

The delta battle brought a mighty array of American firepower and reinforcements against an estimated 500 entrenched Viet Cong. Artillery and air strikes pounded the muddy battlefield, helicopter gunships swirled down in close support, and Navy Monitors carrying 40mm raked the guerrillas on the fortified river banks. Overhead twin-engine Dragon ships dropped a stream of high-intensity parachute flares to light the scene.

The heaviest U.S. casualties came early in the fight when the

Streamlining Efforts Attack Army's Orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lots of things military are being streamlined these days—even the time-honored Army General Orders which soldiers for years had to memorize before going on sentry duty.

The change could strike a note of nostalgia for millions of Army veterans but the change should be welcome to today's soldiers.

Starting Aug. 1, the Army will drop the 11 General Orders and substitute these three:

1. "I will guard everything within the limits of my post and quit my post only when properly relieved."

2. "I will obey my special orders and perform all my duties in a military manner."

3. "I will report violations of my special orders, emergencies, and anything not covered in my instructions, to the commander of the relief."

U.N. Hears U.S. Plea For Negotiated Peace

Rusk, Not LBJ, Talks With Russian

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko held an unannounced meeting this morning, their first since the start of the U.N. General Assembly session on the Middle East.

There were reports the two discussed possibilities for a meeting between President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

But neither Rusk nor Gromyko would comment about summit possibilities as they slipped into a small meeting room near the General Assembly Hall.

The prospects for a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting were fading fast today after Premier Alexei N. Kosygin reportedly turned down an invitation from President Johnson to come to Washington.

Administration officials in Washington said Kosygin sent word to Johnson that he had come to the United States for the U.N.'s emergency session on the Middle East and not for the purpose of visiting American authorities.

Kosygin 'Unable'

Kosygin's message, sent through diplomatic channels, said the Soviet chief therefore was unable at this time to accept Johnson's offer to meet at the U.S. capital or a nearby place like Camp David, Md.

White Sulphur Springs or Hot Springs, Va., the U.S. officials said.

This still left the way open for a summit site elsewhere and Johnson's invitation presumably still stood. But with Johnson preferring not to journey to the United Nations area to call on Kosygin, and Kosygin preferring not to leave it, the outlook for their meeting diminished as time grew short.

The Soviet leader arrived in New York Saturday morning and had been expected to stay through next weekend. Now there are reports he may return to Moscow in a couple of days.

Working on Summit

The U.S. ambassador to Moscow, Llewellyn Thompson, was said to have come to New York unannounced late Sunday to work on possible summit arrangements through Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to Washington who is here with Kosygin.

Prior to Kosygin's reply, U.S. authorities generally had assumed arrangements for a Johnson-Kosygin get-together would be worked out although no definite time and place had been set.

They considered it most unlikely that the heads of the world's two greatest powers would miss this unusual opportunity to at least exchange views on items of common interest ranging from the Middle East crisis to Vietnam and disarmament. Johnson and Kosygin have never met face-to-face.

But other factors—mainly linked to prestige and tactics—have been keeping them apart. Kosygin from the start has conducted his trip as a visit to the United Nations as an international meeting place, not as a journey to America. He is leading the Soviet drive to woo the Arabs by pushing for U.N. condemnation of Israel.

President's Plan Given By Goldberg

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States today proposed a five-point program for peace in the Middle East to be achieved by Arab-Israeli negotiations with "appropriate third-party assistance."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, rejecting Soviet demands for condemnation and punishment of Israel for the results of its lightning victory over the Arabs, laid down the American proposal on the lines of President Johnson's policy speech Monday.

Goldberg told the 122-member assembly, meeting in special session on the Middle East crisis, that the "bomb of hostility" must be defused but that the explosive itself would have to be removed if a durable peace were to be achieved.

Goldberg did not spell out in detail what was meant by "appropriate third-party assistance," but the phrase suggested a possibility of international mediation in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

The U.S. resolution introduced by Goldberg called for negotiations based on mutual recognition of the political independence and territorial integrity of all countries in the area. The other points of the resolution called for freedom of innocent maritime passage in vital waterways, just and equitable solution of the Arab refugee problem, registration and limitation of arms shipments to Middle East countries, and recognition of the right of all sovereign nations to exist in peace and security.

These were the principles Johnson laid down Monday. The

One-Third of Force Goes Off Duty on Dispute Over Salary

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's police force was depleted by nearly one-third of its patrolmen today in a dispute over demands for higher pay.

With more than 800 patrolmen off work, city officials headed into court to seek a permanent injunction barring a strike. A temporary restraining order was issued last week.

Al Leggat, city director of labor relations, said he had been assured that some 400 Michigan National Guardsmen could be called to duty on four hours notice if they are needed to help out.

Aid also has been offered by the Michigan State Police, Leggat said.

$10,000 Salary
The dispute centers around a demand by the Detroit Police Officers Association — DPOA — that patrolmen's top salaries be raised from the present $8,335 annually to $10,000. City officials insist there is no money available for such a raise.

The ranks of patrolmen were depleted by about 200 suspended for neglect of duty and several hundred others who called in sick, as well as nearly 100 on the disabled list or on emergency leave with departmental approval.

The "sick call" epidemic began last Thursday after several traffic bureau officers who allegedly had participated in a ticket writing slowdown were assigned to pounding a beat.

It appeared to have tapered off Sunday after the restraining order was issued, but flared anew Monday.

Corporation Counsel Robert Reese warned that the situation was nearly out of hand, and was deteriorating badly.

Dictatorship Might be in Trouble

'Everyone in Haiti Fears for His Life'

NASSAU, The Bahamas (AP) — It was late at night when the Haitian came to see the priest, begging for enough money to return to his homeland and the family he left there.

He had come from Haiti not long before, and told dramatically why he came, and why he wanted to return.

"I did not have work for 10 years before I came here," he said. "Do you know how much money I left my wife and five children for food when I came? Three dollars. Three dollars!" He broke into sobs.

'Most Miserable'
"Haiti is easily the most miserable country in the Western Hemisphere," said the priest, who tells this story to explain the wave of Haitian refugees coming illegally to the Bahamas.

The influx reached such large proportions early this month that the six-month-old government of Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling began a wholesale roundup of Haitians, deporting at least 1,025 who could not prove that they were here legally. Some had been in Nassau for as long as seven years, working at menial jobs and sending part of their salaries home.

They were rounded up so fast that at one point Fox Hill Prison overflowed, and several hundred were kept for several days in an abandoned airplane hangar at Oakes Field Airport, on the outskirts of Nassau.

"It is simply a desperate movement of population," said the priest, who asked not to be identified for political reasons. "There is no employment in Haiti, simply no employment. Seventy to 80 per cent are unemployed. Every Haitian has good reason to fear for his life. There is no security in Haiti."

Afraid of Reprisals

Talks with a number of Haitians supported the priest's assessment. Talking with Haitians in the Bahamas is difficult, because so many are afraid both of reprisals upon their families in Haiti, and the Bahamian police.

Those who do talk, however, tell of no work, raids in the middle of the night by gangs supported by Haitian President Francois Duvalier, and the sud-

EDITOR'S NOTE—An influx of more than a thousand Haitian citizens into the Bahama Islands during the first week of June brought speculation that Haiti's dictatorship might be in trouble. A Catholic priest who talked with many immigrants, however, sees continuing human misery, rather than political problems, as the cause.

den disappearance of family members who are never heard from again.

"I'm scared," said one man, obviously reluctant to talk. "I leave my family in Haiti. Someone could come during the night, they disappear. I am scared."

"You overhear somebody say he don't like the government, you tell the government," said another Haitian in heavily accented English. "They like to hear, they give you money, maybe even a car. You don't see that fellow again. But you be careful what you say, too."

Smuggle Selves

For these reasons, the priest said, Haitians have been smuggling themselves into the Bahamas since President Duvalier came to power in 1957. The influx was small at first, several hundred a year, and the Bahamian economy, flimsy at best, absorbed them into unskilled jobs—primarily gardeners and construction laborers.

"Bahamians don't have to do these because they are offered better jobs," he said.

Now, however, the fear most commonly expressed among Bahamians in the street and in letters-to-the-editor columns of Nassau newspapers is that Haitians will take jobs from Bahamians if they are allowed to continue coming in.

A senator, Dr. Doris Johnson, who has formed a committee to help the Haitians who are here, said she understands from official sources that there are 20,000 to 30,000 Haitians in this island nation of 185,000 persons. She did not indicate how many came in legally, with passports and the "work permit" any non-Bahamian needs to work in the Bahamas.

Work permits have been issued in the past whenever an employer can show he tried unsuccessfully to find a Bahamian employee. Last week, however, the government ordered that no more new work permits would be issued to Haitians.

$100 Per Head
The priest said most immigrants who came by boat were charged up to $100 a head by the boat captains. They got the money, he said, by selling their land in Haiti, borrowing family savings, or borrowing from money lenders at exorbitant rates. Boats stopped offshore to avoid police and the immigrants to the county jail after work Monday night. Additional help was needed at the police station to search the prisoner and get him into a cell. Chief Malouf admitted his wife had left the keys in her car, which was parked in the driveway, after she had returned from grocery shopping. But he commended the patrolmen for doing their "usual good job."

At Large for 60 Seconds

Auto Thief Makes Poor Selection

NEENAH — A car thief picked on the wrong car early this morning and enjoyed its use for exactly one minute.

Neenah Police Chief Lawrence Malouf was preparing to go to bed shortly before 12:30 a.m. today when he heard a car engine racing in front of his house at 630 Winneconne Ave.

He took a quick look out of the window and called the police station, where his call was recorded at 12:29 a.m. Exactly one minute later, Patrolmen Harold Williams and Joseph Bludau reported stopping the car at Winneconne Avenue and Reddin Street, two blocks away.

The car belonged to the chief's wife.

The two patrolmen had to call for assistance to subdue the car thief, a Huber Law prisoner who failed to return

Federal Court Orders Changes In Washington, D. C., Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia's Board of Education, its policies termed discriminatory, is under federal court order to make massive changes in the capital's public school system.

Judge J. Skelly Wright of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued the order — which could have national implications — in a decision Monday that demanded revision of board policies on student placement, faculty hirings, busing and attendance regulations.

The verdict was a victory for Julius W. Hobson, a federal employee and civil rights leader, who hailed it as assuring "a bright future for the poor black boys and girls in the school system."

The Board of Education withheld immediate comment regarding a review by board attorneys.

Hobson, 45, who 18 months ago filed the suit against the board charging discrimination, said he hoped school officials would appeal Monday's ruling to the Supreme Court.

He said if the high court upholds Wright's ruling it would strike a death blow to so-called de facto segregation, or racial imbalance in the schools, with sweeping ramifications for urban areas of the North.

Wright ordered the board to abolish immediately its system of placing students in "tracks" of varying academic difficulty depending on the students' scores on aptitude tests.

The judge called the aptitude tests "standardized primarily on white, middle class children" and said they forced most Negro children into tracks which offered reduced curricula and from which "chance of escape is remote."

The decision also ordered the faculties of capital schools "substantially integrated" and said the board must provide busing to take Negro students from overcrowded schools to primarily white schools, which he said have enrollments under capacity.

Wright further ordered the board to file a plan by next Oct. 2 to increase racial integration of students.

Wright said the track system, because of improper aptitude testing, denies Negroes "equal opportunity to obtain the white collar education available to the white or more affluent children."

Findings of research projects will be visually presented and demonstrated by three nationally-known research organizations: Social Research, Inc., Chicago, Ill.; National Family Opinion, Toledo, Ohio; Arthur D. Little, Inc., Cambridge, Mass.

Some of the questions to be answered include:

"How much loyalty do shoppers have to particular stores?"

"How helpful is the home furnishings salesman?"

"What influences a home furnishings purchase?"

Businessman's Cute Answers Won't Give Second Connection

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For the past 15 years I have been a busy executive. I do not agree with your stand that the person who telephones is obligated to give the secretary his name. I find it most annoying when I am asked "Who is calling?" I have made it a rule never to give my name.

Landers

Only one question is more irritating and I have learned how to get past it in a hurry. When a secretary asks, "What is it you wish to speak to Mr. Doe about?" I reply, "I'd like to know what his intentions are in regard to my wife."

I just thought you'd like to know how we less timid souls handle these so-called important secretaries. Sacramento Dear Sir: Thanks for the clue-in. The trouble with these cute answers is that you can only use them once. What do you do for an encore, Milder?

but I have another idea which is please, tell me why being the equally good. I hope you will be oldest gives my sisters the right to hit me? I have some friends who have the same problem. Please answer for all of us. — Black and Blue

Dear Black and Blue: I get dozens of letters from kids who tell me their brothers and sisters come up and hit them "for no reason." There is always a reason. Maybe not a very good one, but it's a reason, nevertheless. The solution is to have such a friendly relationship with your sisters that they will not want to hit you.

Apparently your mom and dad are raising you to know that boys are not supposed to hit girls and they are to be complimented for it. If your little sisters get overly pesty and take advantage of your gentleness, however, your parents should step in and punish them.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright 1967)

Parents Tell Engagement Of Daughter

SHOCON — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carpenter, route 1, Shiocton, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruby Louise, to Willis Prelwitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Prelwitz, route 2, Clintonville.

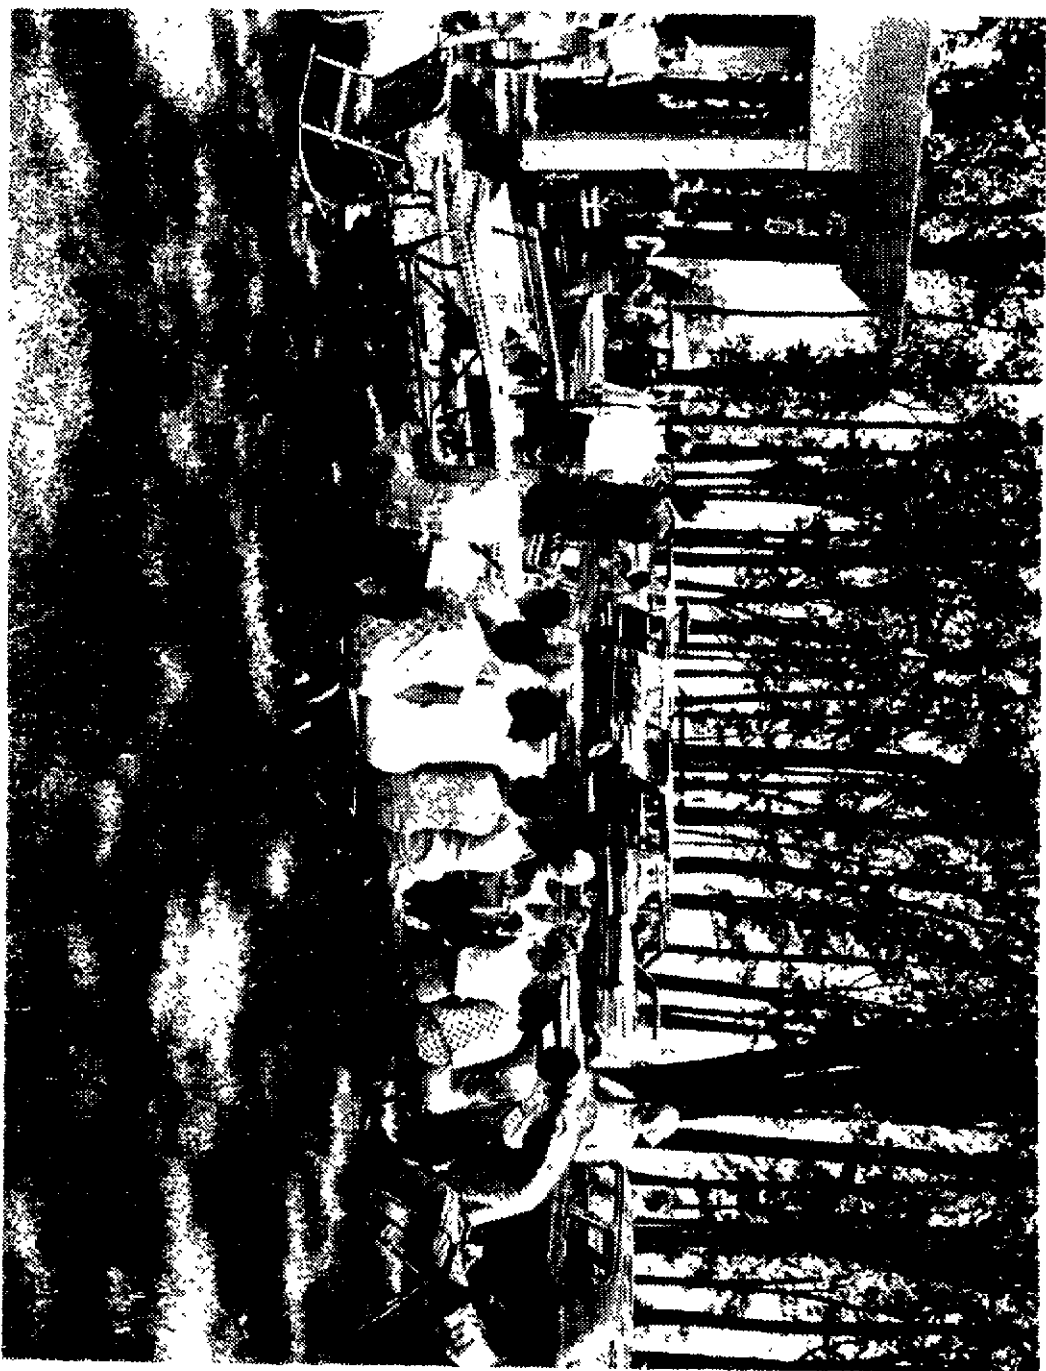

The girls from five to 11 get away with murder. They can by the Horntowne Manufacturing Co. Her fiancé, who served in the Army, is with it. You are the oldest. Will you.

The children of the late Henry and Christine Schaefer held their family reunion Sunday in the park donated in loving memory of their parents. The land for the park, six and one-half acres, was donated to the city in May, 1961. This spring, with the addition of a shelter, picnic tables and playground equipment, the park was ready to accommodate family groups, and the Schaefer family were among the first to sign up.

Seven of the original 12 children of the Schaefer family were at the reunion. On hand with members of their own families, enjoying the summer Sunday in the shade, on the land that was once part of the family farm, were George, Sherwood, Nick, Peter, Margaret, and Anna. Appleton; Sister Mary Henry, Milwaukee, and Sister Fidelis, Mt. Calvary. The Schaefer have 132 descendants, include one great-great-grandchild. The land, from which Schaefer Park is composed was originally about 200 acres, with 300 rods of frontage on the Fox River. First to be separated was land for the sewerage disposal plant. Within the last 15 years the rest of the farm has been platted, although other farm buildings have been razed. The land was annexed to the city about 10 years ago, and two churches and two schools have been built there. These are St. Bernadette Church and School, Good Shepard Lutheran Church and Johnson Elementary School. Schaefer Dairy, one of the landmarks, is still in operation.

Committee members planning the Sunday reunion were Mrs. Ivan Cristenauer, Richard Schaefer and Mrs. R. L. Kozz.

A Foolish Double Aids Opponent

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't scold your partner if he fails. East gets three trump tricks that he cannot possibly defeat. Save your censure for the really expensive sort of double: the kind that tells declarer how to make a contract that he would otherwise fail to make.

South would surely go down at four spades undoubled. His normal play is to win the first heart and give up a spade trick at once.

The opponents continue east had to discard a trump for the third heart and leads a diamond trump to the ace. If trumps from dummy East was reduced to the K-Q-10 of spades, while South had the J-6 of spades and 10 tricks.

As the cards lie, this line South from winning his tenth tricks. East gets three trump tricks with the jack of spades.

Timely Warning Wanted by the double, South can make four spades in a declarer play was to refuse the first heart, with the second, cash the top clubs and ruff a club in dummy. Declarer then ruffed a heart, took the top diamond and ruffed a diamond.

South ruffed another club with dummy's ace of trumps, and what do you say?

Answer: Bid two hearts. Partner will presumably pass, sending 50 cents to The Post-Crescent, Box 3318, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. A Pocket Guide to Bridge is 19617.

Greek Styles Blend Classic Lines, Design

Dimitri Kritsas, Greek fashion designer, arrived in New York City this week to present his 1967 haute couture collection to the American fashion industry. The collection will be shown Wednesday at a special reception in New York's Plaza Hotel. Kritsas describes his new collection as a "unique blending of classical patterns and Byzantine designs with a genuine personal belief that 'the American feminine form is ideally suited for the particular line which has been characteristic of Greek statues and frescoes throughout the centuries, culminating in the graceful folds of the caryatides and the daring necklines of the women of Knossos.' The 1967 collection is colorful. Kritsas has expressed his

Had Own Problems

Caseworker Begins Job With Special Empathy

By BERNIE GOULD
NEW YORK (AP) — It took Gladys Moody more than 20 years—off and on—to get through college, part of the time while receiving welfare payments. Today, with a sociology degree, Mrs. Moody starts work as a hospital caseworker, helping others with problems. "I'm in a better position to help them," said the 38-year-old divorcee and mother of two. "I can understand what they feel." She knows first hand, she said in an interview, the "decided stigma attached to being on welfare." She said that when her youngest, Eugenie, was born 2½ years ago, she was separated and applying for a divorce. She said she didn't know her husband's whereabouts, and had given up her job and schooling to take care of the baby. Hard Choice She had a hard choice to make. She could either put Eugenie up for adoption, as friends suggested, and go back to work. Or she could go on welfare, try to finish school while a day care mother looked after the baby, and hope ultimately to land a job enabling her to support her family. "Relief was a horrible word in my family," said the daughter of a tailor. "But I had no choice. I couldn't give up the baby." Welfare workers, she said, told her they had never before subsidized anyone through college, that hers would be a test case in New York State. Mrs. Moody secured a National Defense loan under a government program and went back to school. She had started college in 1946, taking 1½ years at a Rutgers University branch in Atlantic City, N.J., until she no longer could bear up to working days and attending classes nights. Wrote Book She came to New York in May 1948 and took a job. Later, she enrolled part-time at the New School for Social Research. Then came night classes at Brooklyn College, finishing a 700-page, still unpublished novel about Atlantic City; marriage in an end.

Sewing Serves Double Purpose

Whenever Mrs. Jessie Walsh of Waukesha finds her spirits sagging she brings out her sewing machine. During the past two years she has made 650 articles of clothing for the world's needy. Samples of her work were displayed at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Conference of the United Church of Christ Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Lawrence University. "When I had to retire from business a few years ago because of health reasons," she explains, "I became lonely and had too much time on my hands. Then I began sewing with other church women and my life became useful again." Every Thursday Mrs. Walsh sews from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at First Congregational Church, Waukesha with four to eight other women. They piece donated fabrics and pattern material scraps into infant layettes, dresses, slacks, shorts, pajamas and quilts. The clothes are distributed to various mission fields throughout the world and to disaster areas in the United States through the Church World Service Community Appeals. The organization also collects tools, food and money to help combat starvation problems. Mrs. Walsh says she knew only how to do basic stitches before she really began sewing two years ago. Inside each garment she tacks a label which says, "For the love of Christ we share." She sews every day at home and also knits sweaters and slippers. The Waukesha woman also spends time teaching high school girls to sew. Machines are set up at the church and the girls are taught basic stitches. The finished articles and used clothing are sorted and sent to a church center in Indiana. There they are distributed according to weight and style and sent to missions throughout the world.

Debate in U.N. Not Supposed To be Altruistic

Kosygin's Walkout Rude, Even Though He Had Appointment

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first sour note in the U.N. debate on the Arab-Israeli war came with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's walkout while Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban was replying to his speech.

It was rude, and the Soviets explained later Kosygin had to leave to keep an appointment. But millions saw this on television.

No doubt many concluded Kosygin was expressing contempt for reasonable debate, that he was relying on power politics—the number of nations already lined up on Moscow's side—to win the day for him.

Even if this were not a cynical act, before the first day's discussion was over Monday it was clear this debate was going to be neither altruistic nor idealistic. But nobody ever thought it would be.

Moscow asked for debate in the U.N. General Assembly, wanting Israel condemned as an aggressor, told to give back the land it had captured from the Arabs, and ordered to pay for damage done in the startlingly short war.

Television, Too

In order to get in a word ahead of time, one hour before the assembly was due to meet President Johnson took to television, too, to lay out this country's ideas for restoring peace in the Middle East.

But Eban's was the most brilliant speech of the day, in or out of the United Nations. It was a classic example of making a case by eliminating literary flourishes, which Johnson almost always tries, and relying entirely upon documentation.

He cited not only all the threats Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser made about demolishing Israel before the war began but listed by number, which must have startled the Soviets, how many weapons they had given Egypt.

Nevertheless, the Kosygin-Eban debate was very often on the intellectual level of tit-for-tat.

Building Frenzy
To show long-time Soviet prejudice against Israel, Eban listed the times through the years when Moscow sided with the Arabs in U.N. problems. And he accused Moscow of encouraging the Arabs in building up the Mideast frenzy.

Kosygin condemned the Israelis as aggressors, accused the United States and Britain of encouraging them to violence, and declared Mideast peace is possible only if the Israelis withdraw from the captured Arab land.

While there was little new in hours of discussion, anyone who followed the war controversy closely probably wound up the day just as much impressed by what was left unsaid as by anything Eban and Kosygin did say.

For instance, Kosygin never mentioned the Gulf of Aqaba although from the moment Nasser closed it to Israeli shipping, promising it was closed for good, Israel and the Arabs were on a collision course.

Most Critical

Both Johnson and Eban singled out the gulf blockade as the most critical move in the series of events which led to war. Johnson, putting the blame on Nasser, said: "If a single act of

Canners and Freezers Will Underwrite UW Waste Treatment Study

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A study by the University of Wisconsin College of Engineering of the operation of cannery lagoons for the treatment of wastes will be underwritten by the Wisconsin Canners and Freezers Association, the Association's officers have announced.

The study will concentrate on mechanical aeration methods, and will attempt to determine the feasibility of a demonstration project involving such treatment methods in 1968. Wisconsin canning companies have been among those that are under pressure by the state government in its surface water pollution control and abatement program.

Fluoridation Approved for Hortonville

Village Board Told of Program's Advantages

HORTONVILLE — Fluoridation of the village's water supply has been approved by the village board.

Dr. F. W. Cousineau and Dr. James Bergwall explained the advantages of regulating the amount of fluoride in the water system to board members. Also attending was Dr. James Dougherty, State Board of Health representative, who answered questions about fluoride.

An adopted ordinance calls for adding one to 1½ parts of fluoride to each million parts of water as soon as the State Board of Health approves the system.

Scientific dental and medical opinion stresses the fact that fluoride in water acts as a deterrent to tooth decay.

The board approved having the village's consulting engineers prepare plans for the fluoridation equipment and submit them to the state board for approval.

Little Chute Band to Present First Concert

LITTLE CHUTE — The first in a series of summer concerts by the Community Band will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Doyle Park under the direction of Harold Janssen.

A variety of popular band numbers and modern selections will be offered. The band will also be playing at the American Legion picnic Friday night.

Temporary Employees Also Covered by Social Security

"Part-time summer workers are covered by the social security law," said Frank M. Donnick, district manager of the Appleton Social Security Office.

Donnick stated part-time and temporary employees must be reported for social security purposes in the same manner as full-time employees. This is true regardless of the age of the worker. Except for agricultural work and work in and around a private home, any earnings should be reported and social security tax deducted from the employee's pay.

"Agriculture employees must be paid at least $150 from each employer during a calendar year to be covered by the law," said Donnick. The exception to this rule is the farm employee who works on 20 or more days for cash wages figured on a time basis. These workers are also covered.

Domestic work, that is work in or about a private home, is not covered by social security unless the worker is paid $50 or more in a calendar quarter by one employer. For social security purposes, the quarters are: First quarter — January through March; second quarter — April through June; third quarter — July through September; and fourth quarter — October through December. The agricultural employment, payments in medium other than cash, such as room and board, are not credited.

Donnick urged all employees to be sure to show their social security cards to their employers. He stated anyone may check his social security account to be sure all his earnings have been reported properly. The people at the social security office will be glad to answer any questions about the law and furnish a post card form for checking your account. The office address is 401 S. Elm St., Appleton.

Eban called the blockade the turning point in the crisis. Yet Eban, despite his impressive documentation against the Soviet Union and Egypt, never mentioned who fired the first shot in the war.

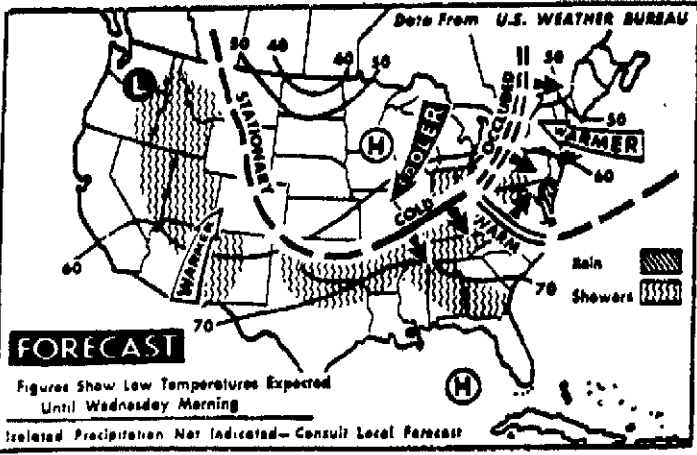

But this is an important point, never yet clearly determined, since the whole basis for the Soviets bringing the case before the United Nations is their charge that Israel was the aggressor.

From the moment Kosygin decided to fly to New York for the debate, the reason seemed clear enough: to mollify the Arabs who felt let down by Moscow's failure to help them in the war after promising it would support them.

All They Could
If the General Assembly refused to condemn Israel, after Kosygin made his long trip and big pitch, asking the condemnation, the Soviets could always tell the Arabs they had done all they could to help.

If this is at the root of Soviet thinking about the debate, it, too, might explain Kosygin's indifference while Eban was making his case for Israel.

Kosygin, a mild-mannered man, looks more like a technician or administrator than an innovator such as Nikita Khrushchev. Khrushchev on his own might have been glad to take on Johnson.

Imperfect Attendance

Committee Stalls Pay Plan Vote For State Officials, Legislators

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A sweeping reorganization of the state's pay-plan for chief administrators and lawmakers moved within one step of acceptance Monday, but was stalled by the less-than-perfect attendance of the legislative Joint Committee on Finance.

Considered at a public hearing, conducted by the joint committee, were plans for a revision of the pay scales of department heads and legislators, a professional-level wage scale for state attorneys, and overtime allowances for some workers in the classified service.

Members Missing

No action was taken after the two-hour hearing because only 10 of the 14 members attended, and co-chairman Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosedale, felt the full committee should vote on the measure which would award legislators a $600 pay increase after 1969.

Absent were Sens. Robert Warren, R-Green Bay, Henry Dorman, D-Racine, and George Borg, R-Delavan and Assemblyman David Martin R-Neenah.

Under the department-head pay boost, salaries for top level officials of the main administrative departments could be raised from a present low of $26,000.

Presented after approval by the state Board of Personnel, the plan may be written into law under a provision adopted by the 1965 legislature, without further legislative approval, if existing statutes are not changed in the action.

John Shiels, of the board, endorsed a five-step plan for state officials which divides administrators into categories based on tasks and responsibilities.

The highest step would pay between $20,000 and $26,000 a position now paying $19,000 to $22,500. An administrator could not be appointed at the top of the scale but would be required to work through the pay grades of his category.

The lowest level would pay between $9,000 and $15,500 for positions now paying from $8,400 to $14,500.

Includes Legislators

Included in that range would be the legislators fixed at the lowest level since a 1965 task force headed by William R.

Kellett, Neenah, established that duties of a state lawmaker deserved compensation roughly equal to one-half of a $17,000 a year job.

Shiels also endorsed a proposed seven grade pay plan which would require legislative approval. The larger plan would cover more positions and maintain the proposed highest and lowest levels, but would also create middle ranges.

Shiels suggested that the simpler plan be adopted, and replaced with the grade-seven proposal "if it gets the legislature's okay."

Scattered opposition to the pay-plan, headed by Assemblyman Lewis Mittness, D-Janesville, contended that it should not be adopted until the legislature meets the needs of educationally disadvantaged children.

Mittness plugged for passage of a Democratically-sponsored bill providing such special aids, leading Assemblyman John Shabaz, R-New Berlin, to call his statement "just a publicity release."

The pay-plan for state attorneys employed by many depart-

Plan Imperfect

"Personally, I don't think there is any perfect way to compensate a professional," said Shiels in outlining the attorneys' pay plan. But the scale is comparable to that established two years ago for state medical personnel, he pointed out.

Replying to questions from Assemblyman Russell Olson, R-Bassett, Karl Wettengel, director of the state Bureau of Personnel admitted that the top levels of the departmental pay plan would be the highest pay rates in the nation for seven fields.

But other states are also raising their wages, he said.

Post Office Cite Option To be Taken

Little Chute May Get Larger Unit Than First Planned

Special to The Post-Crescent
WASHINGTON, D.C. — An option on a new post office site for the Village of Little Chute will be taken this week by the U.S. Postal Department, according to Sen. Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.).

Postal authorities made their decision known to Sen. Nelson on Monday.

Previously, officials from the department's regional office at Minneapolis went to Little Chute and inspected sites suggested by village officials.

Price Problems

Some problem did arise as to the asking price for the first and second choice sites, officials said. They subsequently made a return visit to Little Chute.

In addition to one of the sites that had been under consideration, the Postal Department spokesman informed Nelson that adjacent property might possibly be obtained to provide Little Chute with a larger facility than at first planned.

The latest action by the postal department, officials said, was in response to pleas by Nelson and village residents to get the post office site selected and the construction underway as soon as possible.

Site Undisclosed

The Postal Department's site choice was not disclosed because of pending real estate negotiations.

Nelson told postal authorities he was pleased with the latest development, and knew Little Chute residents would be, too.

Nelson paid a special visit to Little Chute last month to inspect existing facilities and urged speedy action on the request for a new facility.

No cost or size estimate of the proposed Little Chute post office has been given by federal officials in charge of the upcoming project.

In addition to these groups, who will be on the campus either seven or eight weeks, more than 1,400 persons will use Lawrence facilities for special conferences during the course of the summer. The United Church of Christ, two Lutheran groups, one Catholic and one Methodist group are already scheduled.

Trouble Looms for Shabby Buildings

State Inspectors to Demand Strict Enforcement of Codes

A warning note was sounded Monday that owners of substandard College Avenue properties "may receive a rude awakening" from State Industrial Commission building inspectors.

The comment was made during a meeting of the plan commission's panel assigned the task of making a study of vacant upper level avenue properties.

Enforcement Expected

Raymond LeVeé, the group's chairman and a professional architect, said it was his understanding the state now had 76 inspectors as compared to only 16 some time ago.

He indicated state men were making inspections and forcing cities to be much more observant than in the past in enforcing codes.

"If it is happening in other parts of the state, it will here, too," LeVeé declared.

Property owners are being told by state men to bring buildings up to full requirement or get rid of the upper levels, LeVeé indicated.

The inspectors deal mostly with occupied buildings while the job of pushing for repair or condemnation of vacant structures is usually for the local building inspector.

However, LeVeé and other members of the study group said they had nothing to do with inspections or ordering owners to repair buildings.

Information Confidential

In fact, it was emphasized that all information obtained by the committee will remain confidential. It will be compiled and passed along to the plan commission, along with a list of general recommendations on how to get better occupancy in College Avenue buildings, especially the upper stories.

Participating in the session were: LeVeé; W. A. Close, avenue merchant; Walter Rasmussen, city planner; Arno Haering Jr., Fox Valley Planning Commission; Robert Kennedy and Otto Bytof, local

Rural Kaukauna Driver Injured as Car Tips, Rolls Off Embankment

Ann P. Kempen, route 3, Kaukauna, was taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital about 6:30 p.m. Monday with injuries she suffered when her car tipped over on Outagamie County Trunk Z, a mile west of Kaukauna.

County police said the woman suffered abrasions and contusions and injuries to her right shoulder and chest. She reportedly lost control of the car on the crest of a hill and the vehicle struck a guard post and rolled down a 30-foot embankment into a field.

Police said the road was wet at the time of the accident. Damage to the 1966 auto was estimated at $1,500.

Land Acquisition Committee Seeks 11.6 Acre Hoover Park School Site

Hoover Park, 11.6 acres of flat land on Appleton's southside, presently used for two baseball diamonds, was favored today as the site of a new grade school by the city's land acquisition committee.

However, the committee said it would recommend purchase of the Mielke Trust site as an alternative if the Hoover site is not made available by the park-recreation commission.

The city has made the commission an informal offer of 22 acres of nearby city-owned Roeland property in exchange for the Hoover Park land.

Commission Deadlocked
Saturday at a hurriedly called meeting, the commission was deadlocked 3-3 on whether to make the land trade which would result in a much larger area to develop a new park.

The deliberations of the land acquisition committee took place at city hall this morning during an open meeting attend-

Driver in Fatal Traffic Crash Pays $50 Fine

Roger A. Hansen, 24, Hortonville, Found Guilty by Court

A 24-year-old rural Hortonville man Monday was found guilty of a traffic charge brought in connection with an accident Nov. 23 that took the life of a Racine woman.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller, who heard the case without a jury, fined Roger A. Hansen, route 1, Hortonville, $50 and costs or 24 days in jail. Judge Keller found Hansen, a truck driver, guilty of operating his vehicle on the left side of the highway. The charge had been brought following inquest called late last year by Coroner Bernard H. Kemps.

Passenger Dies

Miss Annie Blandi, 28, Racine, died in the two-car nighttime accident at U. S. 45 and Outagamie County Trunk BB, west of Appleton. She was a passenger in a car driven by Waino Kleimola, 36, Racine, which collided head-on with the Hansen car.

Kleimola, the Hansens, and their young son were injured in the accident.

Richard Hamilton, Outagamie County assistant district attorney, called as state witnesses Kleimola; Patrolman Orville Crane and Sgt. Robert Keating of the Outagamie County police; Lawrence D. Hennes of Germantown, who was at the accident scene; and Paul Herzfeld of Appleton, a photographer for The Post-Crescent.

Hansen and his wife were the only defense witnesses.

The Johnsons are the parents of three children.

Kimberly Youth Fined $135 for License, Speeding Violations

James F. Stuyvenberg, 19, 238 S. Pine St., Kimberly, was fined a total of $135 and costs or 64 days in jail and his driver's license was suspended for 60 days after he pleaded guilty on two traffic charges today.

Council Unit to Consider Three Major Improvements

Legislators Outline Action

Review UW Site Battle Plans

Meeting in an informal joint session Monday night, the members of the Outagamie County Board, Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors and the Committee of 100 were brought up to date on legislative action concerning the re-location of the northeast University site.

Assemblymen Harold Froehlich, William Rodgers and Ervin Conradt set forth two informal proposals in terms of constructive action.

Suggest Thanks

In the first, those present were urged to personally acknowledge thanks to persons who have supported Assembly Bill 72-A.

Bill 72-A changes the site of the northeast university to the Larsen Farm site west of Green Bay.

In the second proposal the men urged anyone having contact with legislators who have opposed the bill, to make individual approaches to facilitate distribution of the facts involved to these legislators.

Legislative voting records were distributed and the suggestion was made by the legislators present that if the public feels strongly about the measure now before the Senate, now is the time to make these wishes known.

States Interest

Delmar Drumm, executive secretary of the Appleton chamber, said it was emphasized by all who spoke at the meeting that interest lies in getting the university project off the ground. "This is not an attempt to re-locate the school in Appleton or Outagamie County," he said.

The bill is expected to come up for final reading and vote before adjournment of the legislature at the end of the month. According to Drumm, passage is anticipated.

Kaukauna English Program Given $79,970 U.S. Grant

Curriculum Planned to Explore Intensive Teaching Techniques

KAUKAUNA — The school district has received a $79,970 grant from the federal government for development of an exemplary program in the teaching of English, according to Julian Bichler, superintendent of schools.

The grant is provided under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, Title III, and will be administered by Miss Frances Church, coordinator, and Bernard F. Hupper, language consultant and English instructor. Planners indicated the grant was for the first year of a 3-year study.

The pilot program is designed for selected classes, kindergarten through 12th grade, and will include participating classrooms in three Catholic grade schools in the city. The public school portion of the program will include two kindergarten classes and one third grade to be housed in rooms rented from St. Mary Catholic School, one first grade at Nicolet and one third grade at Park School.

Class Participation
All intermediate classes at Park School will be part of the program as well as 100 seventh and eighth grades at Electa Quinney School and 270 10th through 12th grade students at the high school. A special non-graded intermediate class at Harrison School completes the first year of public school involvement.

At St. Mary a second and third grade will take part with the latter sharing time with the public school class. Holy Cross will include two fourth grades and a sixth grade while St. Aloysius will have a second grade and seventh or eighth grade in the program.

Emphasis in elementary schools will be placed upon the enjoyment of language study.

Reading, vocabulary study, spelling and language will not be taught during certain blocks of time, but instead will be integrated in one time period and referred to throughout the day. One central text for each reading group will be used from which all other related subjects will spring, eliminating the need for spelling, vocabulary and language workbooks.

Same Procedure

The same procedure will be used in the non-graded intermediate class, but greater emphasis will be placed on

Charge Reduced; Man Guilty of Reckless Driving

Clifford Barton, 35, 1918 N. Owaissa St., this morning was fined $150 and costs or 60 days in jail after he was found guilty of a reduced charge of reckless driving.

Barton, who appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, had been charged by Appleton police with driving while under the influence of intoxicants, following an accident Dec. 12 at Richmond Street and Wisconsin Avenue.

Dennis Herrling, assistant city attorney, moved to amend the charge to reckless driving.

Fast-Flowing Waters

Two Men Credited With Saving Mental Patient

Two Appleton men, who were leaving for home after work, were credited by police with saving a 31-year-old woman who fell into fast-flowing canal water Monday afternoon.

The woman, a mental patient at St. Elizabeth Hospital, escaped injury but was quite "shaken up," authorities said. The fire department rescue squad was called and the woman, mother of two young children, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by Lindy's Ambulance.

She was pulled from the canal, just south of Island Street, by Steve Williams, 39, 1831 E. Byrd St., and Howard LaLonde 40, 1625 E. Melrose Ave., both employees at Appleton Machine Co., near which the canal flows.

Williams told The Post-Crescent he was leaving work about 3:30 p.m. when he noticed the woman sitting on a wooden ramp leading from an old storage van to Island Street.

Acting Strangely

Thinking the woman was acting strangely, Williams asked her several questions. She said her husband had dropped her off there, and that she was looking for a pen she had lost.

Williams told a reporter he was walking toward his car when the woman got up and started down the narrow ramp. She staggered and fell down a steep, brushy embankment into the canal. The water is about five feet deep and the canal is about 15 feet wide where the woman fell.

Williams, who was about 100 feet away, shouted to her to grab onto a low-hanging branch. He said she grabbed a branch about 20 to 30 feet downstream.

Williams then ran back to find LaLonde, who knew nothing of the accident, and the two of them climbed down the embankment, grabbed the woman's arms and pulled her ashore.

The woman, who reportedly had a short pass from the hospital, lost her purse and glasses.

All Part of Appleton's 5-Year Plan

Recommendations on three major capital improvement projects proposed in Appleton's comprehensive and five-year plans will be forthcoming in six weeks from the city council's street-sanitation committee.

The committee, meeting a city hall Monday afternoon, gave priority to making studies and recommendations concerning:

—Development of a pedestrian mall in Soldiers Square between Oneida and Morrison Street at an estimated cost of $50,000 to $75,000.

—The authorization of a $35,000 study to determine the exact location for a high level bridge — estimated to cost $5 million and be completed by early 1970's — over the Fox River at Oneida Street. The study is expected to take two years.

Incinerator Study
—Launching a thorough study to determine whether the city should have a municipal incinerator to supplement its present landfill garbage and rubbish disposal operation.

The task of investigating need for the facilities and setting a timetable for start and completion was assigned the committee at a recent council meeting.

Several council committees are studying other projects included in the five-year plan as well as the comprehensive plan which charts the city's course through 1985.

Ald. Roy Pointer (14th), committee chairman, said it would be necessary for the group to conduct special meetings on the bridge study item.

Pointer, and others on the committee, conceded it would be impossible to have a new bridge before 1970.

Reasonable Estimate

Pointer said, after talking to state and other engineers who are knowledgeable, that the $5 million estimate is reasonable.

Mayor George Buckley and some other city officials have questioned whether a high level bridge would cost considerably more than the estimate.

It could take from two to three years to build the bridge once the council makes the decision to do so. The committee will be charged with reviewing all aspects of the proposed project, including whether federal aids may be available in the future for such a project.

Planners have given the bridge construction top priority.

The bridge would have a

Cyclist Sentenced To 15 Days, Fined, Loses License

A young rural Hortonville motorcyclist who was injured when his cycle went out of control during a high speed chase by police early the morning of June 9, this morning was fined $100 and costs, was sentenced to jail for 15 days, and his drivers license was suspended for three months.

Gary L. Komp, 18, route 1, Hortonville, pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 of attempting to elude police.

A county policeman caused Komp's motorcycle from Shiocton on States 54 and 76, then College Avenue and Durkee Street about 11 p.m. Monday, where the cycle went out of control. The three and a half mile chase was at speeds over 100 miles per hour.

Komp suffered cuts and abrasions over a large part of his body when he was thrown from the motorcycle. The chase occurred about 1 a.m. June 9.

The Lawrence University Campus was quiet exactly one week between commencement and the onset of summer school. On Monday more than 380 persons began study in a variety of special institutes and undergraduates courses. The 60 teachers in the program are using 90 Appleton students of junior and senior high school age as subjects for experimental techniques.

'Courts Will Handle It', Kampo States on Annexation by Banta

MENASHA — Roland Kampo, pointing to the growth pattern in the Town of Menasha, predicted that the town would be able to recuperate its valuation losses in a few years if the Banta annexation package goes through, but he indicated the town wasn't ready to give up 303 acres of industrial land without a fight.

Speaking to members of the Breakfast Optimist Club this morning, Kampo said he didn't want to "judge Banta's case" and added, "The courts will handle it."

He was referring to the announced annexation of 42 parcels, worth almost $8 million, to the City of Menasha. Petitions and counter-petitions are presently being circulated among the property owners in the area.

Kampo complained about the annexation procedure where one business with a large valuation can bring in a number of smaller properties into the city against their will. "A man should have the right to have his business where he wants it," he said.

The town chairman noted that last year's construction in the town amounted to $3½ million and the coming years could see even more building activity.

"If the town can keep its borders, in not too many years it will surpass the value of both Neenah and Menasha," Kampo declared.

He said that at one time the Kimberly-Clark Corp. property amounted to nearly 75 per cent to the entire town's evaluation. But now, because of a growth "that even exceeded the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission's expectations," the Lakeview Mill only accounts for about 16 per cent.

"The potential of the town is fabulous," Kampo stated.

He said that if the towns of Menasha and Grand Chute should be taken in by the cities, "it won't stop the industrial growth of Greenville."

Kampo added it was important to keep the industries and their evaluation in the school district since more than 50 per cent of the taxes go toward school purposes. "When they move out of the school district, it really hurts."

Kampo declared, "There's never been an annexation which saved the taxpayers a dime." He pointed to the problems of revamping sewer stations and constructing costly lift stations to service new areas.

He claimed the cities want to annex town property to increase their bonding power.

Kampo said there was a basic difference between rural and urban townships and suggested that towns be classified into first, second and third classes.

Former Banta Vice President Dies Monday

Cyril A. Peerenboom Retired in 1963 After 47 Years With Firm

NEENAH — Cyril A. Peerenboom, 71, 1025 S. Park Ave., Neenah, vice president of the George A. Banta Co. at the time of his retirement in 1963, died Monday evening.

He was born July 23, 1895 in Appleton and was a Twin City resident for 44 years. He was a graduate of Seattle College, Seattle, Wash., and joined the Menasha firm Jan. 23, 1916 as a substitute proofreader.

Later he was put in charge of the classical department and in 1926 was named assistant secretary. He was elected treasurer in 1935, secretary in 1937 and first vice president in 1951.

The Banta official was a member of the Butte des Morts Country Club, Neenah-Menasha Elks, was a former member of the Menasha Library Board and for many years was treasurer of St. Patrick Catholic Church.

Survivors include the widow, two daughters, three sisters and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at the Laemmrich Funeral Home and 10 a.m. at St. Patrick Church with the Rev. Lambert D. Scanlan officiating. Burial will be in St. Margaret Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 4 to 9 p.m. Wednesday. The Catholic Daughters of America will pray the rosary at 7 p.m. with the general rosary at 8 p.m.

Planners Start Work On Neenah Core Study

NEENAH — The Redevelopment Authority of Neenah (RAON) saw its biggest job as "getting the guys off and running" in the first meeting with the consultants since the authority was created.

The planners and economic consultants responded enthusiastically Monday evening.

Kenneth Schellie received the nod to concentrate his studies in an enlarged portion of the downtown core and promised to get started immediately on traffic studies.

Russell Straley, of Real Estate Research Corp., said the first portion of his economic feasibility survey would study the need for a new hotel facility for Neenah. A shopper interview will be conducted later this month.

The seven-man corporate body decided to retain the same leadership as under the Neenah redevelopment study committee, the RAON predecessor.

Abbott Byfield was named chairman; Ald. Harold Young, vice chairman, and Robert Skalmoski, secretary. Young, who is the sole council representative on the RAON, replaces Ald. Paul Mueller, the regular meetings of the authority will be held on the first Thursday of each month at 4:15 p.m. but special sessions will be called to review progress from the consultants.

Schellie suggested the area considered in his 1961 comprehensive plan be expanded to include traffic patterns into the downtown sector. He noted the new area, which is about three times the size of the original study, would only be used as guidelines in planning and insisted it wasn't the redevelopment project area.

A project area must receive approval from the council and this probably won't be designated until the planners issue their final reports, sometime around the end of the year.

The planners will concentrate on an area, roughly bounded by Oak to Spruce to Church to Smith to the railroad tracks to the river.

Schellie said his firm wasn't concerned so much with an extended business area as it was with traffic capacity and control features leading to the core.

The planners' first steps will be to determine traffic patterns and parking facilities. Schellie said his company would check vehicle registrations, traffic counts, recent accidents, and the location, usage and availability of parking.

Decision Delayed On Catholic High for Twin Cities

NEENAH - MENASHA — The proposed Catholic high school for the five Twin City parishes is not a dead issue.

It was roused from its slumber Monday night when the board of directors and representatives from each parish elected to update the Catholic High School project through a re-evaluation study, with a report due in October.

Two men and two alternates from each parish will be appointed by their pastors to meet July 5 at St. Patrick's cafeteria to set up a detailed analysis of the needs, the timetable and financing of a high school for 1,400 students.

No resolution on the central high school project will be sent to the Most Rev. Stanislaus V. Bona, bishop of the Green Bay diocese, until the report is complete.

A survey has been made during the past month among the parishioners of St. Mary, St. Patrick, Menasha and St. Margaret Mary and St. Gabriel, Neenah, seeking a consensus on how to move on the high school project. St. John asked for a longer time in which to give careful consideration to the matter and this request resulted in Monday's action to make a thorough appraisal.

28 Acres Donated for Town Park

NEENAH — The Town of Neenah has its first park.

Excitement ran high Monday night when the Park and Recreation Commission voted unanimously to accept the offer of 28 acres of level farmland east of South Park Avenue and south of Maple Lane, a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Mahler.

Mrs. William Burger, chairman of the Park and Recreation, reported that the commission plans to name its new recreation area Mahler Park, subject to the approval of the donors.

At present there is corn planted on part of the farm land. Probably little more than planting a few shrubs and trees and adding a road to the proposed park will be done this year.

The commission envisions for the 28 acre park a picnic area near the tree lined quarry at one end of the property as well as a softball field.

Development will probably begin next spring, Mrs. Burger said.

A proposal to build a bicycle trail from State Highway 114 through the Swatscheno Farm woods to Tullar Road, in cooperation with the City of Neenah which owns the Swatscheno tract was made to the commission.

New Savings and Loan Building to be Opened Thursday in Menasha

MENASHA — Twin City Savings & Loan Association's new half-million-dollar Menasha office building will open for business Thursday after being shown off by officers and personnel at a reception Monday night attended by several hundred people.

Herb Pagel, manager of the new offices which supplement the older Neenah operation, said the structure is "an endorsement of our faith in Menasha."

The new building, third in a series of financial institution offices erected on Main Street in recent years, also contains office space available for rent on all three floors.

Menasha Library Plan Examined

MENASHA — The Menasha Library Board Monday pored over preliminary drawings of a new two-story library that would face First Street.

The early diagrams call for a structure with a full first floor and mezzanine second floor, plus a full basement. The board, however, is still debating the merits and demerits of many features of the building, including the mezzanine.

The plans were prepared by Raymond N. LeVeé Associates with further drawings.

De Gaulle Keeps View on Market

PARIS (AP) — French sources say President Charles de Gaulle's basic opposition to British entry into the European of Appleton. The board has been instructed to come up with its final concepts for the building before the architects proceed with further drawings.

Common Market was not altered by his talks Monday and today with Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

De Gaulle was reported holding to the view that the British request must be thoroughly discussed by the six present Common Market members. British sources expressed optimism that negotiations on the British application for membership would begin soon.

The enrollment of 240 students in summer classes at the University of Wisconsin-Fox Valley Center is an almost 100 per cent jump over 1966's total of 146.

In addition to freshmen and sophomores regularly enrolled at FVC, collegians from 38 others schools are registered.

The schools are Alverno College, Carroll College, Cathage College, Concordia Teachers College, University of Dallas, Del Mar College, Grinnell College, Holy Family College, Jesuit College, Lawrence University, Lewis College, Manhattan School of Music, Marquette University, Michigan Technological University,

Middlebury College, Milton College Mount Mary College, Newton College, Northwestern College, Notre Dame University, Oberlin College, Oshkosh Technical Institute, Outagamie County Teachers College, Purdue University, Ripon College, Sacred Heart Seminary, Spencian College, St. Norbert College, Stout State University, Valparaiso Technical Institute, Vanderbilt University, University of Vermont, University of Wisconsin (Madison), Wisconsin State University (WSU)-Eau Claire, WSU - Oshkosh, WSU-River Falls, WSU-Stevens Point and WSU-Whitewater.

Twenty-five classes in 15 different subject areas are being taught in the summer session, which will continue through Aug. 11.

Host Members of the Retailers Gasoline Dealers Association welcomed two guests to the annual convention here Monday. Chatting before the program are, from left, Robert Malchow, 1967 chairman, James Snodgrass, Jerome May, Harold Froehlich, speaker of

realtors; and Orville Strutz, 17th Ward alderman.

The committee was encouraged by the response it received from avenue property owners when a recent survey was made to determine vacancies.

However, it was also apparent that the small percentage not responding represented some owners whose properties are vacant.

Would Renovate

For the most part, according to Rasmussen, owners said they would renovate structures if they could get tenants to pay going rates.

The committee felt there is a potential downturn for more second story offices and modern apartments.

Rasmussen disclosed that some owners also expressed willingness to construct new buildings if they could get clients willing to meet rent or lease charges.

In the case of those who have not expressed interest in cooperating with the survey, the possibility exists their buildings are in marginal condition and will continue to decline, it was speculated.

Tend to Decay

Rasmussen said these buildings then would tend to decay and have less and less income.

The committee said it appeared first floor levels of College Avenue buildings "are pretty well occupied."

In some instances, it was theorized by the committee, the first level rental must be carrying the load for the entire building. There are owners getting a good return on their property and don't care about sis will be placed upon individual interests and their extension through independent study. The junior high school program will have a 2-hour block of time during which they will study both English and social studies.

Basic ideas and how they are expressed will be followed through both subjects.

The high school program is aimed primarily at average students and is a non-graded, elective system. Students will be guided in their choice of nine, six or three week units in literature, composition or language. While each unit will be centrally based, it will also include elements of the other two areas.

Composition Units

Units in composition will include technical writing, letter, short story and drama writing. Language units will explore the areas of semantics, persuasion and history.

Students having difficulty anywhere in the program because of skill deficiencies will be helped individually through the use of reading specialists and the language consultant.

The program will be supported 100 per cent by the federal government during the first year. After evaluation of the first year, it is expected the program will be installed throughout the Kaukauna system and funds for the second and third year will be about the upper levels, it was surmised.

However, the committee said it again would contact known owners who did not respond to the first survey. In addition, a letter of appreciation will be sent to those who did.

"If we can just stem the tide on those buildings starting to go downhill now, this would be an accomplishment," Close commented.

$56,000 and $24,500 respectively. A final assessment will be made after the third year to determine whether it should be continued.

Depth Determined

Kaukauna teachers, aided by the Wisconsin English Language Arts Curriculum Project directed by Dr. Robert C. Pooley of the University of Wisconsin, determined the scope and depth of the program.

Planning started in November and included submission of a complete brief and supplementary budgets. Preparation for teaching in the program was offered through a 6-week course in structural and transformational grammars taught by Hupperts and a 1-week workshop in June. Five faculty members will work on the program throughout the summer.

"Since the program is an exemplary program not only for Kaukauna but for the state of Wisconsin, it is expected that Kaukauna will make available, through some agency, the innovative materials developed for use in the program as well as the steps and procedures used in teaching during the program," concluded Hupperts.

Man Pleads Guilty to Reduced Traffic Charge

Frank W. Verhagen, 24, 132 S. John St., Kimberly, pleaded guilty Monday afternoon to a reduced charge of reckless driving.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller fined the Kimberly man $100 and costs or 24 days in jail. Appleton police arrested Verhagen for driving under the influence of intoxicants about 11:30 p.m. March 19.

The motion to reduce the charge came from Dennis Herrling, assistant city attorney.

'Stolen' Auto 'Borrowed;' Youth Fined on Driving Count

Appleton police this morning were able to close the file on the case of a "stolen" car found smashed against a tree on the city's far west side early Saturday.

Police said that Gary P. Nutting, 18, 839 E. Minor St., took his father's 1961 station wagon from the driveway about 1 a.m. Saturday, then lost control of the car, crashing it into a tree on Birchwood Avenue, near Glendale Avenue. The car is owned by Daryl Nutting, of the Minor Street address.

Youth Fined

Gary Nutting was fined $75 and costs or 36 days in jail this morning after he pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 of reckless driving and driving without a license. In addition he will not be able to apply for a driver's license for three months.

Police said the Nutting youth abandoned the car after smashing into the tree. He admitted taking the car when police questioned him late Saturday morning.

Police at first were told that the Nutting home had been burglarized early Saturday morning, and that the car keys were taken from the kitchen.

At the same time, Buckley reportedly informed him there would be additional stipulations concerning a Mielke site acquisition. They are:

Stipulations Include

—The Mielke Trust would have to dedicate its portion of the Taft Street right-of-way to the city without charge.

—It would be required to dedicate a north-south street right-of-way from Calumet to Taft Street, all needed to serve the proposed new school.

—Waive a special assessment hearing when sewer and water utilities are laid to the school site, and pay whatever special assessments that would be levied against benefitting Mielke property.

Bills Will be Introduced

Froehlich Says Legislature Sees Problems of Gasoline Retailers

The need for strengthening the retailers gasoline industry and improving the industry's image in the eyes of the public has been noted by the state legislature, members of the Wisconsin association were told Monday.

Speaking on some of the bills pertinent to the Wisconsin Gasoline Retailers Association at the annual meeting was Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, speaker of the Wisconsin Assembly.

"Your continual problem with suppliers, the short margins and low wages that you experience and the trading stamps that many of you are pressured into giving are some of the things that make your position seem less than desirable," the top assemblyman said.

However, several bills will be introduced this year that are steps toward ending or lessening some of these problems, Froehlich added.

Among the bills mentioned by the assemblyman was the divorce bill, which, he said, has the major oil companies concerned. "Could it be they do recognize some of the injustices they deal out to you but they don't want them stopped because they are much too profitable?" the speaker asked.

Another legislation deals with the overly large circus-type price signs commonly seen on corners. Passage of this bill would be great deterrent to price wars, he added.

"And speaking of price wars, why do you have them? How are you pressured into them? What other industry has them as often as you? As consumers we don't have the answers but you dealers should," Froehlich said.

Bills concerning trading stamps are also pending, the speaker said. One bill would outlaw stamps entirely in the state and another, remove them from the gasoline industry and a third would prohibit their redemption for anything but cash, the group was informed.

Turning to the need for improving the image of the dealers in the community which they serve, Froehlich told the group of about 100 that unfortunately the consumer public often take "the valuable services for granted."

Write in Camp Diary Each Day, Send It to Parents

Young Hobby Club
The summer vacation camp project has a double purpose. First, it provides pages on which you can enter a record of each day's activities; secondly, these pages can be removed from time to time, folded and placed in an envelope and mailed home as a report to Mother and Dad.
Use any ring-bound notebook or print a title on it with white ink (see Figure 1).
Each day at camp make a brief entry in the diary as shown in Figure 2. These entries will be reminders next Fall and Winter of the day's events.
Take advantage of the plus value, simply open the rings and remove the sheets, fold them and mail them home, accompanied by a note adding any further information which was not used as a diary entry. The rings are a lot easier to take the place of a regular composition book.
Be sure to tell your family to save the diary sheets so you can put them back into the notebook birth recently to her third set of triplets Mrs. Franco married nine years, now has nine children.

Ecuador's Tennis Team Shocks U.S. In Davis Cup Play

Guzman Upsets Ashe to Give His Team Insurmountable Edge

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — "When you lose, you keep your mouth shut," said U.S. Davis Cup Captain George MacCall, and his team had little to say after their humiliating defeat at the hands of tennis mid-geet Ecuador.

"Ecuador beat us fair and square," was all Cliff Richey could say after the South Americans took an insurmountable 3-1 lead Monday.

Arthur Ashe, the No. 1 player in the United States, said nothing, making himself unavailable for comment after his second straight embarrassing loss which left his country on the outside looking in for the sixth time in eight years in the preliminary rounds.

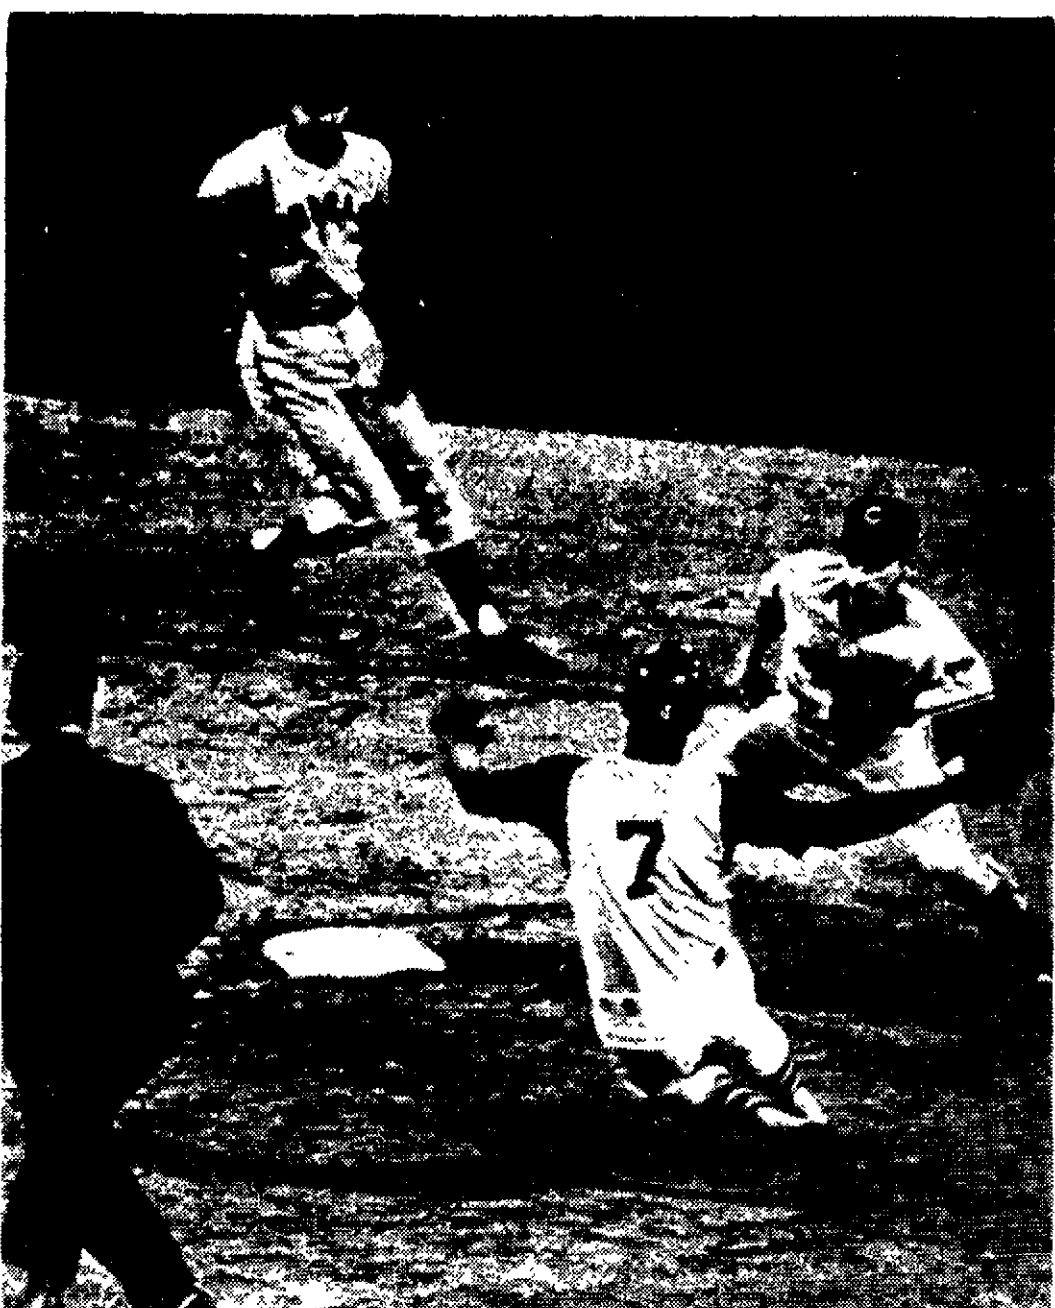

Ashe, of Richmond, Va., on leave from the Army, lost to unheralded Francisco Guzman, 6-4, 6-2, 0-6, 63 Monday eliminating the United States from the American Zone final.

Heavy Underdog
Ecuador the heavy underdog which has never before reached the quarter-finals in this struggle for world amateur tennis supremacy, thus moved into the interzone semifinals. It will meet the winner of the European Zone A final between Spain and Russia.

Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., who beat Guzman in the first singles Saturday, will complete the best-of-5 series today after his now meaningless match against Miguel Olvera was suspended Monday. Richey was leading 5-7, 6-4, 7-5.

The U.S. team was heavily favored here, even after Ashe lost to Olvera in his first single match Sunday and Ecuador took a 2-1 lead when Guzman and Olvera beat Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., in the doubles Sunday.

But Ashe seldom rose to the form that made him the hero of the United States' victory over Mexico earlier with two singles triumphs.

The Pirates' Andre Rodgers is a dead duck, as he attempts to steal second base in the fourth inning of Monday night's game against the Cubs in Pittsburgh. Matty Alou's Bloop Single In Seventh Tips Cubs, 4-3

Little Pirate Has 12 Hits in Last 15 At-Bats

BY DICK COUCH

The harder Matty Alou attacks a baseball, the more it bleeds.

Alou, the National League's 155-pound batting king, butchered the Chicago Cubs with a run-scoring, bloop single in the seventh inning that carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-3 victory Monday night.

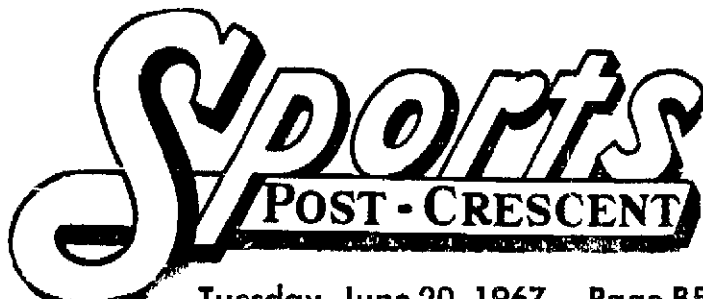

The little Dominican's third single in his last 15 at bats and an impressive .317 average for the season.

"I don't think anytime in my career I have ever been hitting the ball as hard," said Alou, who led the league with a .342 mark last season but was under .280 when he began his rampage last Friday night with an eighth-inning double at Philadelphia.

He went 4-for-5 against the Phils on Saturday, 4-for-5 again on Sunday and 3-for-4 against the Cubs at Pittsburgh. Two of his 10 singles during the spree have been bunts and four have been infield taps.

Beyond Kessinger
But the biggest hit was the looping fly that felt just beyond second baseman Don Kessinger's reach to snap a 3-3 deadlock Monday night.

While Alou was gouging the Cubs, light-hitting Dick Schofield of Los Angeles overpowered Atlanta 3-2, surprising Julio Gotay of Houston wasted five

Aaron Terms Fight With Carty Regrettable

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Atlanta Braves' star Hank Aaron says his fight with teammate Rico Carty "was regrettable, but if anybody calls me that name again, there'll be no fight."

Carty says only that he's sorry it happened.

And Braves Manager Billy Hitchcock says he's going to wait a couple of days before making a decision about disciplinary action.

"It was one of those things that happen on a ball club," Hitchcock said Monday night. "It isn't the first time two players have lost their tempers and probably won't be the last."

The brief scuffle between the two Braves took place 35,000 feet over the Midwest Sunday in the rear of the team's chartered jet.

Neither player was hurt in the fracas, broken up by teammates Pat Jarvis, Tony Cloninger, Bob Uecker and Clay Carroll.

Aaron told an Atlanta Journal-Sports writer, Wilt Browning,

Foxes Gain Split in Extra-Inning Games

Reichardt's Homer Decisive

Rick Monday, Battey, Skowron All Sustain Injuries in AL Action

By RON RAPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
There were almost as many medical communiques as baseball reports coming out of American League ballparks Monday night, and the immediate conclusion might be that the age of the iron man isn't over yet.

Rick Monday, Earl Battey and Bill Skowron all seemed out to prove that it takes more than a cut or a knock to get a fellow out of the ball game.

Monday injured his left foot in the first game of Kansas City's two-night doubleheader with Cleveland but didn't leave for X-rays until the second game. The Indians won both contests, 4-2 and 2-1.

Battey was bounced around in a collision at the plate with big Boog Powell of the Orioles as the Twins split a two-nighter, winning the first game 4-0 and losing the second 9-5. But the Minnesota catcher didn't leave the game until the next inning.

Slides Home
And Skowron, playing only a week after being spiked in the hand while sliding home a week ago, reopened the cut while batting in the eighth inning of the first game of the Angels' doubleheader with Detroit. California won the opener 2-0 and the Tigers took the nightcap 5-1.

New York and Boston were rained out. Washington and Chicago were not scheduled.

Monday bounced a foul tip off his foot in the fourth inning of the first game, but not until the fourth inning of the finale did he leave the line-up for a quick trip to the hospital for a check-up.

Apparently, there were no great problems because the Athletics' outfielder left soon after X-rays were taken.

Battey was on the receiving end of Powell's 240 pounds when the Oriole first baseman got caught in a rundown on a missed squeeze bunt attempt. Boog was finally tagged out, but he jammed Battey's arm in the process. Earl left for a pinch hitter the next inning.

Skowron needed 20 stitches to close up his reopened wound, suffered as he fled out in the eighth inning.

The Indians won the first game on pitcher Steve Hargan's two-run homer—his first extra-base hit in the majors—with two out in the ninth. Don Demeter's pinch homer and Fred Whitfield's run-scoring single gave the Tribe the nightcap.

Dave Boswell set the Orioles down on just three hits in the opener as the Twins scored twice on Tony Oliva's homer and twice on Zoilo Versalles' single. The Birds mounted a 15-hit attack in the second game, led by Paul Blair's two singles, double and triple.

Rick Reichardt's homer accounted for the only runs in the California-Detroit opener as Clyde Wright and Minnie Rojas combined to stop the Tigers on

2 Minnesota Golfers Share Peters Title

Warobick Finishes With 144; Al Starr Has 145 Total

A professional and an amateur from Minnesota shared the title in the Peters Open Golf Tournament at South View Country Club, West St. Paul Monday.

George Shortridge, Mounds View, and Shortie Cliff, Mankato, each carded 36-hole scores of 140. The tourney was originally scheduled for 54 holes, but a Monday morning thunderstorm halted play after the second round.

Appleton Butte des Morts pro Al Starr, who tied for the lead at 68 the first day, carded a 77 for a 145 total. Neenah Ridge-way pro Bob Below added a 76 to his first day's 70, for a 146.

Ex-Appleton pro Lou Warobick, coupled his first round 72 with another 72 — for a 144 total — despite having 11 three-putt greens on his last round.

Bob Swift, the pro at Branch River, Manitowoc, added a 73 to his first day's 69 to finish at 142.

6-Foot-11 Center Signs New Orleans Contract

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — John Dickson, Arkansas State University's standout center, signed a contract Monday with the New Orleans Buccaneers of the newly formed American Basketball Association.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed. The 6-foot-11, 245-pound Dickson was one of the top draft choices of both New Orleans and the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association.

Radmaker Homers in Second Tilt

CLINTON, Ia. — After being held scoreless for 14 straight innings, Appleton's Foxes came to life for seven runs in the final six innings to gain a 7-1 triumph and a split of a pair of 10-inning marathons with Clinton here Monday.

The victory followed Clinton's 1-0 win in the opener. It was the Pilots' first victory over the Foxes this season.

The split kept Appleton three games behind Midwest League-leading Wisconsin Rapids, which also divided a doubleheader.

Tonight, the same two teams will tangle in a single game. Foxes' manager Alex Cosmidis expects to go with righthander Steve Kokor (2-2), who just recently was taken off the disabled list and has not worked since May 31. He will be opposed by righthander Charles Lamb, who pitched a no-hitter last week.

The doubleheader was the Foxes third in three days and they have completed the cycle, dropping the first pair, winning the second and splitting last night.

Fourth of Season
The extra-inning games were the third and fourth of the season, all of which have been on the road, with the Foxes winning three of the four.

In the opener, the Foxes had runners on base in every inning but the sixth and ninth, but failed to move them around as they stranded nine men. In the fourth the bases were loaded,

Jack Bennett Signs Pact With Senators

CLINTONVILLE — A 3-sports star at Clintonville High School, Jack Bennett, has signed a bonus contract to play with the Washington Senators of the American League.

Bennett was signed by Bert Thiel, Senator scout, Monday night. Terms of the contract were not made public.

Bennett, a right-handed hitting infielder, has been assigned to play with the Geneva, New York, farm team in the Class A New York-Pennsylvania League.

Although a shortstop through much of his high school career, he will be switched to second base at Geneva. His high school and American Legion batting averages hovered near .300 in three years of play.

The 18-year-old signee will leave Wednesday, only three days before the league opens play. Bennett plans to play with Geneva during the summer, then return to enroll at Ripon College in the fall.

Before All-White Jurors
Cassius Pleads 'Not Guilty'

By B. F. KELLUM
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Cassius Clay entered a plea of innocent today before an all-white federal court jury in his trial on a criminal charge of refusing to be inducted into the military service.

"Not guilty," Clay said in a loud voice after hearing the indictment read before the jury of six men and six women in the court of Judge Joe Ingraham.

The prosecution then summoned several witnesses who testified that Clay had reported to the Houston Armed Forces Induction Station April 28 as ordered but refused to take the symbolic one step forward.

Lawyers for Clay spent Monday afternoon quizzing the jury pool about their opinions on the war and on Clay's religion. The 25-year-old fighter is claiming that as Black Muslim minister Muhammad Ali, he is draft-exempt as are other men of the cloth.

In the courtroom, a sullen Clay swiveled in his chair, dangling his arms to the floor, and consulted with lawyers Hayden Covington of New York and Quinlan Hodges of Houston on the exercise of the defense's six challenges against jurors.

U.S. Atty. Morton L. Susman, directing the four-man prosecution team, readied four witnesses for the morning session in the court of U.S. Dist. Judge Joe Ingraham. One is legal officer es.

Knowles Presents Questions for Study By Tax Task Force

Best Possible Use of Wisconsin Dollar Sought by Tarr Committee

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent News Service

MADISON — Wisconsin's searching study of local government financing started Monday on an inquisitive note, as Gov. Warren P. Knowles directed the special task force to examine the state's existing system of shared taxes to see if Wisconsin "is putting its tax dollar to the best possible use."

Headed by Lawrence University President Curtis W. Tarr of Appleton, the 13-member committee heard Knowles outline questions "that must be answered."

Recognizing pressures which have been exerted from many municipal officials, urban legislators and the City of Milwaukee, Knowles asked the panel to determine whether present methods of distribution of state collected taxes which are shared with local units of government are equitable.

Are additional units of government formed by the distribution of these taxes?, Knowles asked. The committee should determine taxing rates throughout the state and whether property taxes are too high, he said.

And the possibilities of creating new forms of taxation for local units of government should also be studied, he suggested.

"The state of Wisconsin has not been blind to the financial needs of local government," said Knowles in reply to criticism from some local officials that massive tax redistribution is necessary to lessen tax sharing inequities created by allegedly outdated formulas.

"The state has made tremendous efforts to aid local governments as evidence by the property tax relief program, a doubling of school aids, and substantial increases in shared taxes," the governor stated.

Alliance of Cities

He made his comments in a welcoming address to the committee, of which he appointed down construction equipment is nine members. Four legislators also serve on the unit which because repairs paid for by the state were created after pressures. United States were left undone. The Senate subcommittee on including the formation of the foreign aid expenditures plans informal "Alliance of Cities" to to open hearings July 27 on that lobby for changes in sharing and other allegedly unfulfilled formulas.

State Commissioner of Taxation James Morgan told the unit that during fiscal 1967, the state will distribute about $79 million in shared taxes, state aids, property tax relief, and local assistance programs.

Knowles pointed out that the biennial cost of such tax sharing and associated programs will total more than $1.1 billion, more than the state's executive budget for the same period.

The committee, under Tarr's guidance, has been directed to report its recommendations for possible sharing changes to the 1969 Legislature.

Schedule Adopted

At the meeting the committee adopted a schedule designed to occupy their attentions until the beginning of next year.

Meeting at least once a month, the unit outlined a four-phase program which will include fact finding sessions and public hearings throughout the state during that period as the initial steps. Later stages will include possible redistudies and the drafting of the final report.

The committee also decided to include state school aids in the realm of their studies as a facet of local assistance programs. No definite times were scheduled for the discussions of that aspect of local governmental financing were set, however.

"I'd just as soon not until it becomes obvious that school aids is one of the areas that we have to look into. It will come," said Assembly majority leader J. Curtis McKay, R-Cedarburg, of setting a specific study date.

Attending the session as spectators were officials of county, town and municipal governmental organizations, including Roland Kampe, town chairman of Menasha.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ait was found to be unusable, Lippman said. "The information I get is that the countryside and some of the villages are virtually littered with broken-down pieces of equipment."

It will be left there to rot, said Lippman, because of the expense involved in shipping it out again for repair.

Kenedy Family, Monk Hassling

Battle Starts for $300 Million Estate

SARITA, Tex. (AP) — Sitting on dusty folding chairs beneath a forbidding oil portrait of the late cattle and oil baron, Capt. Mifflyn Kenedy, 100 Kenedy descendants crowded into Kenedy County courthouse Monday to begin a summer-long fight over a $300 million estate.

The hearing is scheduled to run through September. At stake is the 200,000-acre holdings of Sarita Kenedy East, a granddaughter of Mifflyn Kenedy. Her last will brought a middle-aged Trappist monk into a hassle over some of the Kenedy millions.

The tangled estate of Mrs. East has been the subject of mountains of litigation since she died of cancer, Feb. 22, 1961, at the age of 71. With her at death was Christopher Gregory, 50, formerly "Brother Leo" in a Catholic order.

Will Challenged

Some 100 relatives of Mrs. East are challenging a 1960 will. They charged in court Monday that the will was written when she was under influence by Gregory. Attorney William Wright of Laredo, Tex., said Gregory and shipping executive J. Peter Grace of New York "conspired" to get Mrs. East to draw up the will.

Mrs. East's holdings were valued by the federal government at $29 million for tax purposes. The discovery of a vast pool of oil and gas beneath her part of the La Parra Ranch built up by Capt. Kenedy more than a century ago, boosted that estimate to around $300 million. The case is being heard by Special Probate Judge William R. Edwards, a Corpus Christi attorney.

'Play It Cool,' Carmichael Says; Negroes Riot Anyway

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crowds of rock-throwing Negroes swarmed into the streets of a shopping center in a Negro neighborhood of Atlanta, Ga., Monday night despite advice from black power advocate Stokely Carmichael to "play it cool."

He spoke to the crowd at a nearby church and said police have "got us surrounded tonight, so we'll just walk around and play it cool."

However, the group of about 350, mostly teen-agers, rushed into the shopping center area and began to throw rocks and bottles at store fronts and police cars.

Desecration a Crime

Quick Action Expected On Flag Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation making it a federal crime to desecrate the American flag may be on its way to President Johnson before Congress quits next week for the 4th of July recess.

The House takes up the legislation today, with only a handful of votes expected against it, while plans in the Senate are to bring it to the floor after completion of debate on censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

Both sides plan to use visual aids in the House. Supporters of the legislation say they will show billboard-size photographs of a recent flag-burning incident in New York's Central Park and of the historic flag-raising by Marines on Iwo Jima during World War II.

Opponents plan to display flag-decorated items such as beach towels, pillows and earrings in order to find out if a provision applying the bill to all representations of the flag would make it illegal too, for example, to lean against a pillow with a flag on it.

The major effort to amend the bill is expected to be made by its supporters from both parties who want to spell out more clearly that the bill is aimed only at those who mutilate, deface, defile, burn or trample on the flag with malicious intent.

The House Judiciary Committee, which approved the bill two weeks ago, defeated 18 to 13 an amendment by Rep. Edward G. Biever Jr., R-Pa., to clarify its intentions so it could not be applied against unintentional offenses against the flag.

Year in Prison

The measure, which provides a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine and one year in prison, is intended to protect not only the flag but all representations of it, such as in paintings or on postage stamps.

Opponents of the legislation, led by Reps. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., and Don Edwards, D-Calif., contend it is unconstitutional and is intended to infringe on dissent, particularly opposition to U.S. policy in Vietnam.

All 50 states already have laws directed at flag desecration, but the burning of a flag at an antiwar demonstration in New York in April has brought strong congressional pressure for federal legislation.

A 26-volume deposition has been taken from Christopher Gregory, who was expelled from the Trappist order in January 1966, after he violated his superiors' orders to remain out of the will contests.

Mrs. East became ill with cancer while traveling in South America with Brother Leo, by then her religious adviser, traveling companion and sometime secretary. She died Feb. 11, 1961.

After the second will was made Christopher Gregory, son of a Western novelist, came into the picture.

As Brother Leo, Gregory had joined the Trappist order in 1938 and worked as a cobbler in a monastery at Spencer, Mass. After World War II Brother Leo was selected to venture forth and raise funds for additional lands and buildings for similar monasteries.

Showdown Looms In Pro Golf Fight

PGA Invites Touring Players To Meeting in Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Both the tournament-touring golfers and the Professional Golfers' Association held their first meeting today for what is expected to be a showdown in the players' fight for more control of their tour.

The PGA Executive Committee scheduled a special meeting and invited all players to be on hand to get the PGA version of the present squabble.

"We feel that 80 per cent of the men want to remain in the PGA," said Bob Creasy, executive director of the PGA. "There are just a few who want to make a fuss."

"We would like for all the players to know what the issues in this case are. We do not feel that up to now they have been properly informed," the pro tourists, including such stand-out players as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Bill Casper, have signed a petition asking for a seven-point reform in the pro setup. They are threatening to boycott the PGA National Championship next month in Denver if their demands are not met.

"We Cannot Get In" Max Elbin of Washington, D.C., president of the PGA, insists the players' demands are unrealistic and adds: "We cannot give in on all of these points and keep our position."

Gardner Dickinson, a member of the four-man tournament committee, said he did not know how many players would attend the PGA meeting.

"We have asked the PGA officials to meet with us to hear our side and they have refused," Dickinson said. "We might as well demand that all the 5,800 club professionals get together and listen to our side."

The PGA is composed of more than 5,800 professionals, of which only about 200 are playing members.

For years the playing pros have said the PGA has too much authority in running the tour and that the players themselves do not have a strong enough voice.

Essentially they are demanding elimination of the executive committee's veto power in all policy decisions and the right of the players to schedule tournaments, conduct television contracts and hire and fire tournament personnel.

The PGA says the players, in essence, have these rights now, although the tournament program is run out of the PGA headquarters in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., with Creasy as director.

The current controversy was triggered this year when Frank Sinatra sought to sponsor a $200,000 tournament at Palm Springs, Calif., two weeks before the Bob Hope Classic, a regular event on the tour for years.

The tournament committee, composed of four tournament players and the three top officials of the PGA, voted 4-3 in favor of the tournament, with the three officials taking the negative stand. The PGA Executive Committee then exercised its veto power and ruled out the tournament.

Foxes Divide Doubleheader

but a double play killed that threat.

In Henry Williams' of the 10th, pitcher Clinton Hall singled to right with two out. He went to second as a fly ball by Ed Blackman fell out of the reach of Carlos May. Willie Hooker attempted to pick off Blackman, but the ball got by the first baseman, who recovered and pegged wildly to third. Williams was on his way to third on the pickoff and raced home with the winning run of the bad throw.

Clinton opened the scoring in the nightcap with a pair in the second inning. The runs scored on a sacrifice fly and error's choice after a walk, an error, a fielder's choice and a double steal.

The Foxes took a 3-2 lead in the top of the fifth. With one out, Joe Monty drilled a double to the fence in left and pitcher Ken Prailling followed with a double to right. Jose Ortiz struck out but Jeff Kolb was safe on an error and Roy Radmaker pounded the Foxes' third double in the inning to plate Prailling and Kolb.

Doesn't Last Long

The lead didn't last very long as the hosts pushed across two in their half of the inning. Two singles and a sacrifice fly accounted for the first and an error and a single the second.

With one out in the seventh, the rains came and halted the game. After five minutes the contest was resumed but the delay was bad for Clinton's Mike Morales. Al Fitzmorris got a pinch-hit single. Karl Simon ran for him and stole second. After another out Kolb singled in Simon to tie the game and force another extra inning game.

In the 10th Ortiz tripled to left center and scored on an error. Roy Radmaker then belted the ball off the scoreboard for an inside-the-park homer.

In the bottom of the inning, Dave Arrington singled with one out and Will Hammond slapped a round-tripper over the left center field fence but that's all the closer the Pilots could come.

Pedro Rivera picked up the win in relief.

Snider and Umpire in Shoving Hassle

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Duke Snider, former Brooklyn and Los Angeles fence-buster who now manages Albuquerque in the Class AA Texas League, is sitting out his first suspension in 24 years of professional baseball.

But his general manager, who remembers being in diapers when watching Snider play in Montreal, went to bat for the Duke Monday, threatening a civil suit against the Texas League.

"He was always my boyhood idol," said Albuquerque General Manager Pete Bavasi. "I told him we could finish last and he still would be my hero."

Hugh Finnelly, president of the Texas League, ordered Snider suspended through Wednesday and fined both Snider and umpire Frank Walsh for a shoving battle Sunday night. Snider contends he was spat upon, but the umpire denies this.

Walsh evicted Snider from the game, which El Paso won 11-6.

Snider watched from the press box Monday night as the Dodgers lost 10-4 to Dallas-Fort Worth.

"Great Injustice"

"This makes Duke look like a man who loses his head and beats up on old umpires," said Bavasi. "A great injustice has been done to Snider's reputation. It's not in the best interests of baseball."

Snider said he felt Walsh should have been handed the same punishment. He said he was leaving the legal work regarding the suit and any appeal to the commissioner of baseball, William D. Eckert, to Bavasi and club attorneys.

"As long as he (Walsh) gives us a fair shake and umpires instead of being a rabbit ears, everything would be okay," said Snider. "My chief complaint is that Walsh was the aggressor."

Snider said he wrestled Walsh to the ground, claiming the umpire had shoved him with a shoulder and spat in his face.

"Actually this is the first time I've ever put my hands on an umpire," Snider said. "It upsets me that the president of the league won't listen to our side of the case."

No Comment

Walsh, reached by the El Paso Times Monday night after a game in El Paso, said he would have no comment about an appeal or the suit until he talked with Finnelly.

"I have never spit on a ballplayer in my life," he said. "It's beneath me to do something like that. He bumped me three times before I bumped him back. I made a report to the league of this and that's as far as it goes."

SPORT FANS! I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Here's a little known fact about Sandy Koufax... Although he became one of the greatest pitchers of all-time, if not THE greatest, Sandy's over-all won-loss record actually was worse than average his first SIX full years in the majors! ... Sandy joined the Dodgers in 1955, winning 2 and losing 2; in 1956 his record was 2-4; in 1957 it was 5-4; in 1958 it was 11-11; in 1959 it was 8-6 and in 1960 it was 8-13... thus in those six seasons, Koufax won only 36 games while losing 40!

Ever wonder which fishes are the fastest swimmers in the world? ... They are the blue marlin, swordfish and sailfish... Each can swim 50 miles an hour, which is faster than horses can run.

Did you ever realize all the injuries and illnesses that Doug Sanders has overcome to remain one of the top golfers of the last 11 years? ... During this time, Sanders has been afflicted with heart murmur, an enlarged heart, a neck injury, torn ankle ligaments, a hip injury, broken fingers, a foot laceration, a hand infection and severe burns while he has been on tour... Despite all this, Doug has won over $375,000 and is considered one of the 10 best golfers today... The PGA calls Sanders probably the most injury-prone athlete in history.

Bench After Beating Pitcher

Red Sox Catcher to be Given Another Chance

BOSTON (AP) — The virtual exile of Boston Red Sox catcher Bob Tillman for beating his sixth season with the Red Sox, as Mike Ryan and then rookie Russ Gibson handled the catching duties.

Finally, on May 5, Tillman got his starting chance. In six games, he collected five hits in 16 times at bat. Then came the nightmare May 12 at Fenway Park.

With Detroit leading 4-2 in the eighth inning, the Tigers' Al Kaline took off from first base. Tillman grabbed the pitch and rifled a slightly low, but strong, throw intended to cut down the steal.

The ball never reached second. Relief pitcher John Wyatt, standing erect, turned to look at the play at second. Tillman's throw struck Wyatt on the head, stunning the pitcher. Kaline continued on to third and scored on a sacrifice fly with the decisive run in a 5-4 victory.

Tillman was tagged with the role of goat, but insisted it wasn't his fault. Wyatt, who escaped with a minor bump, didn't know whose fault it was.

"It was possibly the best toss I'll make all year," Tillman said. "I don't mean to criticize Wyatt, but he was standing straight up when I threw the ball. It wasn't my fault."

Williams apparently disagreed. Tillman appeared briefly twice behind the plate in late innings — and got to bat just three more times — in the next 38 games.

Williams injured; Chisox Bring Up Jimmy Stewart

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox placed outfielder Walt Williams on the disabled list Monday and bought infielder — outfielder Jimmy Stewart from Indianapolis to replace him on the roster.

Williams suffered a hairline fracture above his left wrist in the sixth inning of the Sox-New York Yankees nightcap Sunday. He was struck by a Fred Talbot pitch.

Williams will be on the disabled list a minimum of 21 days. Stewart, former Chicago Cub, will report to the Sox Tuesday. In 32 games with Indianapolis, he batted .364 and drove in 20 runs.

300 Persons Arrested at Elkhart Lake

SHEBOYGAN (AP) — About 300 persons were arrested, most of them on Saturday night, during the weekend of sports car racing at Road America near Elkhart Lake, authorities said Monday.

Virtually all of the arrests, many of them for disorderly conduct, occurred Saturday night when a crowd of 4,000 persons massed on the main streets in Elkhart Lake.

Local officers were reinforced by policemen and deputies from nearby cities. Sheboygan County Sheriff Vernon Boeckman had 25 special deputies on duty. The security force also included officers from the cities of Sheboygan, Appleton, Oshkosh, and Waupun, and Winnebago and Ozaukee counties along with the State Traffic Patrol.

Fond du Lac grabbed sole possession of first place in the Southern Division of the Fox Valley League Leagues it handled previously on a 1-1 tie in a 9-0 defeat on a 1-1 tie by Steve Toshner.

In another Southern Division contest, Al Ross tamed Mayville on four hits as Neenah recorded its first win of the season, 6-2.

Toshner allowed only the second man to face him in the first inning to get a hit. After that he pitched hitless ball through the eighth when the game was called because of the league's 9-run rule. Toshner walked four and struck out eight.

Mike Grater and Dick Oldenberger paced the winners' 10-hit attack with a pair of hits each.

SALUTE

A COLUMN FOR DRAFTEES, SERVICEMEN AND VETERANS

Congress to Fatten Vets Benefits

BY JERRY T. BAULCH
For The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A lot of World War I veterans ask me what GI benefits are available to them now and if Congress is thinking about providing additional ones.

Several bills are being considered that would increase pensions and other benefits for veterans of all wars, dating back to the Spanish-American War. And some added benefits are sure to win approval.

Also, there are several proposals, with little chance of approval, to put the veterans of World War I vintage in the same pension category as Spanish-American War veterans, who have special status.

Although the Spanish-American War is fading into history, there are still over 9,000 surviving veterans and more than 54,000 dependents on the Veterans Administration's pension rolls.

These veterans, unlike those of World War I, World War II and Korea, don't have to be disabled to receive full pensions.

Only Volunteer Army

A Spanish-American war veteran who served at least 90 days service receives $135.45 monthly and if only 70 days, he receives $88.04 monthly. Several bills in Congress would raise this.

The proud boast of the Spanish-American War men is that they constituted the only completely voluntary army in modern history.

In view of their advanced age, they get special consideration for prompt admission to VA hospitals.

Bills before Congress to put the doughboys of World War I on the same plane would provide pensions ranging as high as $300 a month.

As in past years, Congressmen have gone to bat for these proposals, but they run into the brick wall of the tremendous cost. Nearly two million World War I veterans are still alive and even a $100 monthly pension would cost the taxpayers $200 million a month.

Moreover, demands that more be done for these veterans have subsided somewhat since the futile bonus march of 1932, designed to force Congress to cash the 20-year endowments voted in 1924. It was two more years before Congress arranged payment. Up to then the World War I veterans had received little federal help except for a few "old soldiers homes."

Philosophy Changed

But by the end of World War II the philosophy of federal help to veterans was more liberal under New Deal influence, and later those of Korea began taking from World War I veterans the leading roles in veterans organizations. Now coming into the picture is the new veteran — the man of the cold war and Vietnam.

There have never been any educational or home loan or small business benefits for World War I veterans, but relatively few needed them even in the late 1940s when the program was born. Their average age now is 72.

With phasing out this summer of the home loan program for World War II veterans, their benefits are coming more into line with those of World War I. But veterans of World War I and World War II — along with those of Korea — remain eligible for pensions if they served 90 days and if their income is as low as $1,800 a year for a veteran with no dependents, or up to $3,000 for a man with more than three dependents.

And there is a separate program for disability compensation.

Hospital benefits are available to all veterans in VA hospitals, but there are priorities. Veterans disabled in line of duty get first chance at bed vacancies.

Next are veterans retired or discharged for a disability and who need treatment for non-service connected ailments.

Last are veterans with a non-service connected disability who state under oath they cannot pay the cost of treatment elsewhere.

Any VA office can tell you whether you're eligible.

FAIRER PROMOTIONS?

The House Armed Services committee has put a subcommittee to work to see if it can give enlisted personnel a fairer shake on promotions by writing rules into law.

Enlisted promotions are governed almost entirely by regulations, which are spelled out in law.

Committee Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S., said "I want to be sure that enlisted promotions don't depend, as is often alleged, on 'being in the right place at the right time'."

He also notes there is a wide variation among the services in advancement procedures and waiting time for promotions. In the Air Force, Rivers said, the average time in grade for promotion is almost twice as long as in the other services.

G. I. Q. BOX

Dear Jerry:

1. What happens if after two years of college a student secures a teaching position at a local grade school at the start of the next year — just where does he stand as far as the draft is concerned? In our city they are also drafting teachers.

2. What happens if a boy goes for a physical but has no information along as to his physical condition and is classified 1A. Since then he has secured X-rays and letters from his doctor indicating otherwise. Does the information go to his local board for a reclassification or does this go to Milwaukee where he took the physical for a reclassification or does he have to go for another physical?

3. Just what does one call extreme family poverty?

Mrs. X-Appleton, Wis.

Dear Mrs. X:

1. There are no blanket exemptions for teachers or others. Each draft board must determine: if the person works at a job full time, can he be replaced? Will his military service cause a material loss in the activity?

2. Any new information on his physical condition should be submitted to his draft board for processing, with a request for consideration.

3. Extreme poverty involves individuals whose drafting would cause hardship to a dependent who resides in this country.

Dear Jerry:

Can a reservist in good standing, who has completed his six months active duty, and is presently actively assigned to a unit apply for a transfer to another unit? The purpose of the transfer would be for occupational reasons. How does he go about it and would he be liable for the draft during the process of transferring to another state.

LTJ, Milwaukee

Dear LTJ:

You'll have the job of finding yourself a new unit which isn't always easy these days. You'll have 60 days after you leave your old unit before you'll be subject to the draft if you are unable to get a new assignment. Of course this doesn't necessarily mean you'll be drafted.

(You can write Jerry Baulch in care of this newspaper, he will answer in his column questions of widest interest.)

Barber Says People Getting Fewer Haircuts

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — The barber business is going downhill. Joe Ryba says, because people just don't get shaves and haircuts like they used to.

"When I started out, 10 times as many customers wanted shaves as haircuts," Ryba said. "Now the younger generation has no use for a haircut, much less a shave," he said in announcing his retirement at 65. He's been a barber 49 years.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, June 20, the 171st day of 1967. There are 194 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1789, the French Revolution began.

On this date —

In 1632, England granted the colony of Maryland to Lord Baltimore.

In 1837, Princess Victoria became queen of England on the death of King William IV.

In 1863, West Virginia became the 25th state to be admitted to the Union.

In 1867, President Andrew Johnson proclaimed the treaty for the purchase of Alaska from Russia.

In 1898, the United States seized the island of Guam in the Spanish-American War.

In 1919, Fanny Brice made her Broadway debut in the Ziegfeld Follies.

Ten years ago — A United Nations committee made a sweeping indictment of the Soviet Union for crushing the Hungarian uprising in the fall of 1956.

Five years ago — France rejected a U.S. proposal that an eventual French nuclear force be coordinated with American and British nuclear forces.

One year ago — President Charles de Gaulle of France arrived in Moscow to begin an 11-day visit to the Soviet Union.

Kosygin Johnson Talk Has Real Importance

Indications Are Communist Countries Fear U.S. Is on 'Imperialist' Offensive

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Novak

dent Tito's motives for suddenly casting aside his unique and carefully nurtured non-align-ment in the cold war. There is good reason to believe Tito thinks "imperialism" is on the march and that now is the time for all good communists to band together. If this attitude is shared even in part by the Soviet Union, as some Kremlinologists here believe, then the LBJ-Kosygin talks, now all but certain, take on truly critical importance.

The concept of the Soviet Union at bay, hardening its anti-Western stand, is vehemently rejected by other Kremlinologists here with gilt-edged credentials. But it has enough backing within the Johnson administration to make it well worth exploring, and the exploration must begin with Tito's journey to Moscow.

Tito Goes to Moscow

For that old partisan fighter, Tito, this was a more radical departure than is generally understood in the West. When we were in Belgrade the other day, Yugoslav policymakers proudly stressed their divergence from the Communist main stream. They pointed with pride to Yugoslavia's boycott of the April Communist conference in Karlovy Vary, Czechoslovakia. Thus, when Tito went to Moscow June 9, and promptly signed the manifesto backing the Arabs and denouncing Israel, there was private but intense complaint from officials in Belgrade.

The most obvious explanation is Tito's long love affair with Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser. But since Tito's grand design of a cohesive "third force," already was in disrepair, there must have been an additional reason for coming back to the Moscow fold.

That reason has now been supplied by reliable informants in Belgrade. They report that party theoreticians close to Tito have convinced him that the "imperialists" are on the offensive against communism and have been whining — in Brazil, Indonesia, Greece, even Vietnam — ever since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

Unrest in Yugoslavia

The Middle East was the last straw. At age 75, Tito may even have feared anti-Communist unrest in his own Yugoslavia. Thus, it was partially concern over the future of communism that propelled Tito into Moscow.

Once there, he made no secret of his concern to the Russians. And in the opinion of some Kremlinologists, Tito's concern was simply a matter of pouring gasoline on an already blazing fire. They believe the Kremlin is agonizingly concerned about its lack of success in expanding the world of communism.

There is substantial evidence of Soviet hardening over the last year (though Moscow's position remains considerably softer than it was before the 1962 missile crisis): stepped-up aid to North Vietnam, naval incidents in the Sea of Japan, naval buildup in the Mediterranean, general increase in arms spending, obvious disinterest in East-West detente.

Nor is the recent Soviet performance in the Mideast particularly reassuring. There is no question here that the Brezhnev-Kosygin regime helped provoke the Mideast crisis, in part as a symptom of general hardening, in part to destroy U.S. influence.

Thus, Kosygin may be entering the talks with Mr. Johnson in a mood quite like Tito's — frustrated, apprehensive, and defensive.

Proper Impression

If so, high policymakers know the President has a formidable task before him. Without giving the Russian any concessions contrary to U. S. interests, he nevertheless must give an impression of willingness to compromise and negotiate — certainly in regard to the Middle East and perhaps, too, in regard to Vietnam. Anything less, and Kosygin may return to Moscow implacably convinced that "imperialism" is on the march.

The mood this would engender is dangerous in the extreme. Although they have been short on cold war successes since the 1962 missile crisis, Soviet nuclear capability has grown impressively and continues to grow each day. If the hard-liners take over in Moscow because of a failure between U. S. and Soviet leaders to communicate here, the Soviets are far better prepared for military confrontation than ever before.

In that sense, the Johnson-Kosygin gathering could be critical. The fact that the U. S. government had done nothing to prepare for it before last Wednesday scarcely lessens the worry here over the next few days.

Suitor's Leap Out of Window Not Enough to Stop London Girl

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard Jewell, police said, was unable to talk his girl friend out of taking a trip to Europe.

American Army-Navy Force Also Suffers Heavy Losses

SAIGON (AP) — An American Army-Navy task force pushing into the guerrilla-infested Mekong Delta was reported today to have killed 169 Viet Cong in a fierce night battle only 19 miles south of Saigon.

Twenty-eight American infantrymen were killed in the battle, 126 soldiers and sailors were wounded, and four American helicopters were shot down, the U.S. Command said.

Other Battles

The battle erupted as the soldiers and Navy river assault forces pushed up a near-flooded paddy area along the Rach Hui River a few hours before dusk Monday. Heavy fighting raged until midnight, then fell off, but new skirmishes were reported today as the men of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division continued the sweep.

The battle was one of several Monday. A Marine landing force in the northern 1st Corps area reported killing 51 Communists in one fight, and U.S. air cavalrymen said they killed 34 Reds in coastal Binh Dinh Province. Thirteen Americans were reported killed in the two actions.

Heavy air strikes against North Vietnam continued Monday with a concentration of raids on Hanoi's rail supply lines.

The delta battle brought a mighty array of American firepower and reinforcements against an estimated 500 entrenched Viet Cong. Artillery and air strikes pounded the muddy battlefield, helicopter gunships swirled down in close support, and Navy Monitors carrying 40mm raked the guerrillas on the fortified river banks. Overhead twin-engine Dragon ships dropped a stream of high-intensity parachute flares to light the scene.

The heaviest U.S. casualties came early in the fight when the

Streamlining Efforts Attack Army's Orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lots of things military are being streamlined these days—even the time-honored Army General Orders which soldiers for years had to memorize before going on sentry duty.

The change could strike a note of nostalgia for millions of Army veterans but the change should be welcome to today's soldiers.

Starting Aug. 1, the Army will drop the 11 General Orders and substitute these three:

1. "I will guard everything within the limits of my post and quit my post only when properly relieved."
2. "I will obey my special orders and perform all my duties in a military manner."
3. "I will report violations of my special orders, emergencies, and anything not covered in my instructions, to the commander of the relief."

Rusk, Not LBJ, Talks With Russian

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko held an unannounced meeting this morning, their first since the start of the U.N. General Assembly session on the Middle East.

There were reports the two discussed possibilities for a meeting between President Johnson and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

But neither Rusk nor Gromyko would comment about summit possibilities as they slipped into a small meeting room near the General Assembly Hall.

The prospects for a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting were fading fast today after Premier Alexei N. Kosygin reportedly turned down an invitation from President Johnson to come to Washington.

Administration officials in Washington said Kosygin sent word to Johnson that he had come to the United States for the U.N.'s emergency session on the Middle East and not for the purpose of visiting American authorities.

Kosygin 'Unable'

Kosygin's message, sent through diplomatic channels, said the Soviet chief therefore was unable at this time to accept Johnson's offer to meet at the U.S. capital or a nearby place like Camp David, Md.,

White Sulphur Springs or Hot Springs, Va., the U.S. officials said.

This still left the way open for a summit site elsewhere and Johnson's invitation presumably still stood. But with Johnson preferring not to journey to the United Nations area to call on Kosygin, and Kosygin preferring not to leave it, the outlook for their meeting diminished as time grew short.

The Soviet leader arrived in New York Saturday morning and had been expected to stay through next weekend. Now there are reports he may return to Moscow in a couple of days.

Working on Summit

The U.S. ambassador to Moscow, Llewellyn Thompson, was said to have come to New York unannounced late Sunday to work on possible summit arrangements through Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to Washington who is here with Kosygin.

Prior to Kosygin's reply, U.S. authorities generally had assumed arrangements for a Johnson-Kosygin get-together would be worked out although no definite time and place had been set.

They considered it most unlikely that the heads of the world's two greatest powers would miss this unusual opportunity to at least exchange views on items of common interest ranging from the Middle East crisis to Vietnam and disarmament. Johnson and Kosygin have never met face-to-face.

But other factors—mainly linked to prestige and tactics—have been keeping them apart. Kosygin from the start has conducted his trip as a visit to the United Nations as an international meeting place, not as a journey to America. He is leading the Soviet drive to woo the Arabs by pushing for U.N. condemnation of Israel.

President's Plan Given By Goldberg

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States today proposed a five-point program for peace in the Middle East to be achieved by Arab-Israeli negotiations with "appropriate third-party assistance."

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, rejecting Soviet demands for condemnation and punishment of Israel for the results of its lightning victory over the Arabs, laid down the American proposal on the lines of President Johnson's policy speech Monday.

Goldberg told the 122-member assembly, meeting in special session on the Middle East crisis, that the "bomb of hostility" must be defused but that the explosive itself would have to be removed if a durable peace were to be achieved.

Goldberg did not spell out in detail what was meant by "appropriate third-party assistance," but the phrase suggested a possibility of international mediation in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

The U.S. resolution introduced by Goldberg called for negotiations based on mutual recognition of the political independence and territorial integrity of all countries in the area. The other points of the resolution called for freedom of innocent maritime passage in vital waterways, just and equitable solution of the Arab refugee problem, registration and limitation of arms shipments to Middle East countries, and recognition of the right of all sovereign nations to exist in peace and security.

These were the principles Johnson laid down Monday. The

One-Third of Force Goes Off Duty on Dispute Over Salary

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's police force was depleted by nearly one-third of its patrolmen today in a dispute over demands for higher pay.

With more than 800 patrolmen off work, city officials headed into court to seek a permanent injunction barring a strike. A temporary restraining order was issued last week.

Al Leggat, city director of labor relations, said he had been assured that some 400 Michigan National Guardsmen could be called to duty on four hours notice if they are needed to help out.

Aid also has been offered by the Michigan State Police, Leggat said.

$10,000 Salary

The dispute centers around a demand by the Detroit Police Officers Association — DPOA — that patrolmen's top salaries be raised from the present $8,335 annually to $10,000. City officials insist there is no money available for such a raise.

The ranks of patrolmen were depleted by about 200 suspended for neglect of duty and several hundred others who called in sick, as well as nearly 100 on the disabled list or on emergency leave with departmental approval.

The "sick call" epidemic began last Thursday after several traffic bureau officers who allegedly had participated in a ticket writing slowdown were assigned to pounding a beat.

It appeared to have tapered off Sunday after the restraining order was issued, but flared anew Monday.

Corporation Counsel Robert Reese warned that the situation was nearly out of hand, and was deteriorating badly.

Dictatorship Might be in Trouble

'Everyone in Haiti Fears for His Life'

NASSAU, The Bahamas (AP) — It was late at night when the Haitian came to see the priest, begging for enough money to return to his homeland and the family he left there.

He had come from Haiti not long before, and told dramatically why he came, and why he wanted to return.

"I did not have work for 10 years before I came here," he said. "Do you know how much money I left my wife and five children for food when I came? Three dollars. Three dollars!" He broke into sobs.

"Most Miserable"
"Haiti is easily the most miserable country in the Western Hemisphere," said the priest, who tells this story to explain the wave of Haitian refugees coming illegally to the Bahamas.

The influx reached such large proportions early this month that the six-month-old government of Prime Minister Lynden O. Pindling began a wholesale roundup of Haitians, deporting at least 1,025 who could not prove that they were here legally. Some had been in Nassau for as long as seven years, working at menial jobs and sending part of their salaries home.

on the outskirts of Nassau. "It is simply a desperate movement of population," said the priest, who asked not to be identified for political reasons. "There is no employment in Haiti, simply no employment. Seventy to 80 per cent are unemployed. Every Haitian has good reason to fear for his life. There is no security in Haiti."

Afraid of Reprisals
Talks with a number of Haitians supported the priest's assessment. Talking with Haitians in the Bahamas is difficult, because so many are afraid both of reprisals upon their families in Haiti, and the Bahamian police.

Those who do talk, however, tell of no work, raids in the middle of the night by gangs supported by Haitian President Francois Duvalier, and the sud-

EDITOR'S NOTE—An influx of more than a thousand Haitian citizens into the Bahamas Islands during the first week of June brought speculation that Haiti's dictatorship might be in trouble. A Catholic priest who talked with many immigrants, however, sees continuing human misery, rather than political problems, as the cause.

den disappearance of family members who are never heard from again.

"I'm scared," said one man obviously reluctant to talk. "I leave my family in Haiti. Someone could come during the night, they disappear. I am scared."

"You overhear somebody say he don't like the government, you tell the government," said another Haitian in heavily accented English. "They like to hear, they give you money, maybe even a car. You don't see that fellow again. But you be careful what you say, too."

Smuggle Selves
For these reasons, the priest said, Haitians have been smuggling themselves into the Bahamas since President Duvalier came to power in 1957. The influx was small at first, several hundred a year, and the Bahamian economy, flimsy at best, absorbed them into unskilled jobs—primarily gardeners and construction laborers. "Bahamians don't have to do these because they are offered better jobs," he said.

Now, however, the fear most commonly expressed among Bahamians in the street and in letters-to-the-editor columns of Nassau newspapers is that Haitians will take jobs from Bahamians if they are allowed to continue coming in.

A senator, Dr. Doris Johnson, who has formed a committee to help the Haitians who are here, said she understands from official sources that there are 20,000 to 30,000 Haitians in this island nation of 185,000 persons.

She did not indicate how many came in legally, with passports and the "work permit" any non-Bahamian needs to work in the Bahamas.

Work permits have been issued in the past whenever an employer can show he tried unsuccessfully to find a Bahamian employee. Last week, however, the government ordered that no more new work permits would be issued to Haitians.

$100 Per Head

The priest said most immigrants who came by boat were charged up to $100 a head by the boat captains. They got the money, he said, by selling their land in Haiti, borrowing family savings, or borrowing from money lenders at exorbitant rates. Boats stopped offshore to avoid police and the immigrants

Auto Thief Makes Poor Selection

NEENAH — A car thief picked on the wrong car early this morning and enjoyed its use for exactly one minute.

Neenah Police Chief Lawrence Malouf was preparing to go to bed shortly before 12:30 a.m. today when he heard a car engine racing in front of his house at 630 Winneconne Ave.

He took a quick look out of the window and called the police station, where his call was recorded at 12:29 a.m. Exactly one minute later, Patrolmen Harold Williams and Joseph Bludau reported stopping the car at Winneconne Avenue and Reddin Street, two blocks away.

The car belonged to the chief's wife.

The two patrolmen had to call for assistance to subdue the car thief, a Huber Law prisoner who failed to return to the county jail after work Monday night.

Additional help was needed at the police station to search the prisoner and get him into a cell.

Capital's de Facto Segregation to End

Federal Court Orders Changes In Washington, D. C., Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia's Board of Education, its policies termed discriminatory, is under federal court order to make massive changes in the capital's public school system.

Judge J. Skelly Wright of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued the order — which could have national implications — in a decision Monday that demanded revision of board policies on student placement, faculty hirings, busing and attendance regulations.

The verdict was a victory for Julius W. Hobson, a federal employee and civil rights leader, who hailed it as assuring "a bright future for the poor black boys and girls in the school system."

The Board of Education withheld immediate comment regarding a review by board attorneys.

Hobson, 45, who 18 months ago filed the suit against the board charging discrimination, said he hoped school officials would appeal Monday's ruling to the Supreme Court.

He said if the high court upholds Wright's ruling it would strike a death blow to so-called de facto segregation, or racial imbalance in the schools, with sweeping ramifications for urban areas of the North.

Wright ordered the board to abolish immediately its system

of placing students in "tracks" of varying academic difficulty depending on the students' scores on aptitude tests.

The judge called the aptitude tests "standardized primarily on white, middle class children" and said they forced most Negro children into tracks which offer reduced curricula and from which "chance of escape is remote."

The decision also ordered the faculties of capital schools "substantially integrated" and said the board must provide busing to take Negro students from overcrowded schools to primarily white schools, which he said have enrollments under capacity.

Wright further ordered the board to file a plan by next Oct. 2 to increase racial integration of students.

Wright said the track system, because of improper aptitude testing, denies Negroes "equal opportunity to obtain the white collar education available to the white or more affluent children."

New London Has Adequate Parking Space, Study Shows

Reluctance to Walk in Business District Pinpointed as Problem

NEW LONDON — Shoppers' reluctance to walk any distance seems to be the biggest snag in the city's sometimes controversial parking problem.

A study by the board of public works indicates there is plenty of parking space available in the city, even during peak hours, but that the location of some of the off-street lots seems to be the reason people continually talk about the lack of available parking.

Curb service is in. Walking a block or two is definitely out, is the conclusion drawn upon reading the report.

The survey was made between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday. The count was conducted on all municipal and private parking lots and parallel street parking spaces in the central business district.

At peak hours, Friday nights in general, there are 208 available parking spots in the city, according to the report.

At other times more than half of the 666 available business area parking spaces were vacant. The report shows an average of 344 unoccupied parking stalls throughout the day.

An additional 183 parking spaces are available on several side streets within one block of the main business district the study states. Usually about 115 of these stalls are left vacant.

The study drew the conclusion that peak times for using parking space was between 10 and

The highest concentration of cars at any one time occurred at 8 p.m. Friday with 560 vehicles parked. Each day the peak parking was at 3 p.m. when an average of 380 cars were parked.

Forty-six additional parking spaces are to be added to the business area this year as the Savings and Loan Association completes a new office with available parking for 16 vehicles and the city adds 30 spaces by constructing an alley between Wisconsin and Shawano streets.

Police Rescue Nurse From Mental Patient

Menasha Man Goes 'Wild' After Drinking On Weekend Pass

Two Appleton police patrolmen late Sunday night saved a nurse from probable serious injury by a 40-year-old mental patient who was holding a chunk of glass to her throat.

The patrolmen were dispatched to St. Elizabeth Hospital about 11:15 p.m. Sunday when hospital officials called for help with a patient who was "going wild" on the fourth floor section, which is used to quarter mental patients.

Holds Nurse

When the two policemen stepped from the elevator, they saw the man holding Mrs. Charles Paul from behind. He held a chunk of jagged glass to her throat. Police said the glass was covered with blood.

While one of the patrolmen talked to the man, the other slowly moved closer and finally grabbed the man by the arm. The second patrolman grabbed the other arm and Mrs. Paul broke loose. Police then pinned the man's arms behind him and took him into a room. The man, whom police said is from Menasha, had suffered a deep cut on his right hand.

Transfer Patient

Several other policemen later arrived at the hospital. The man continued to be unmanageable and hospital personnel were unable to strap him into bed. Police finally put him in restraining straps and took him to Winnebago State Hospital about 12:45 a.m.

Mrs. Paul, who was not injured, is the wife of the assistant administrator at St. Elizabeth Hospital. She lives at 1216 W. Lorain St.

Police were told that the man had been a patient at the hospital about three weeks and had been released on a weekend pass.

He reportedly had been drinking heavily and Sunday night was taken back to the hospital where he became abusive with the nurses. The man also threw articles, including flower pots, near the fourth floor nurses' station. Police said the glass he held in his hand came from a broken flower container.

Members of the Brillion Jaycettes planted a field of pumpkin seeds recently in hopes that their fall harvest will produce a substantial number of jack-o-lanterns. The group intends to sell the pumpkins and all proceeds will be used

Waupaca Club To Join in Radio Drill

Weekend Contest to Test Procedures Used in Emergencies

WAUPACA—The Waupaca Amateur Radio Club will participate in Amateur Radio Week, culminating in a nationwide emergency communications drill Saturday and Sunday, according to Paul Niles, club president.

The drill, dubbed "field day," is sponsored by the national amateur radio organization, The American Radio Relay League. Radio clubs throughout the United States and Canada will participate, Niles said.

The local club will have two stations set up between Shadow Lake Road and County Trunk E and expects to operate continuously for 24 hours starting Saturday afternoon. All equipment will be run with power from a gasoline driven electric generator, just as it would be if local power had failed in an emergency.

Check Equipment
The object of the exercise is to check out equipment and test the procedures that will be used in actual emergencies, Niles said.

The exercise is conducted as a contest, with the Waupaca club trying to outscore all other clubs with comparable equipment, John Lund, chairman, said.

The public is invited to visit the site. Guides will be available to explain how the equipment works and how the group cooperates with the Red Cross, civil defense, police and other authorities in times of need.

During last year's field day the Waupaca club contacted 890 stations in all 50 states and five Canadian provinces.

Senate Procedural Hassle Stops Dodd Censure Vote

Long Wants Decision on Fraud Count

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate debate on proposed censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd is snarled in a procedural wrangle that Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says "could last all week."

Chances for an early vote on the censure resolution dimmed Monday as Sen. Russell B. Long, self-appointed defender of Dodd, renewed his demand for a vote first on the charge that the Connecticut Democrat knowingly double-billed the Senate and private groups for travel expenses.

The Senate ethics committee, which recommended Dodd's censure for what it called financial misconduct, remains insistent that the Senate vote first on the separate charge that Dodd converted at least $116,083 in political funds to his personal use.

No Filibuster

Long, D-La., said he has no intention of filibustering. But neither did he indicate readiness to yield the floor until his colleagues agree to vote first on the double-billing count.

Long said he expects the Senate to reject the double-billing charge and contended it was unfair to leave it hanging over Dodd while the other charge is debated.

Mansfield met Monday with Dodd, Long, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the ethics committee to try to break the impasse.

Unanimous Consent

Long needs the Senate's unanimous consent to reverse the order of vote on the charges leveled by the committee. When he asked for it last week, members of the ethics panel objected.

Mansfield said he would be willing to vote on the double-billing charge first if an agreement could be obtained to follow this, after three or four hours of additional debate, with a vote on the other charge as it now stands.

Long maintained that if the double-billing charge were rejected, a couple of days should be allowed for additional debate on the charge Dodd used campaign contributions and the proceeds of political testimonials for personal expenses.

2 Patrolmen Found Slain

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The kidnap killing of two young U.S. border patrolmen apparently taken from a roadblock sparked a manhunt today.

Marine helicopters flew over the ravines and foothills of northern San Diego County and southern Riverside County.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, other federal agencies and sheriff's offices of both counties put every available man on the tracking job.

A vast area surrounding the cabin in which Theodore Newton, 26, and George F. Azrak, 21, were slain was sealed off. Their government sedan was found covered with brush, and officers said there was no evidence that another car had left the scene 70 miles north of San Diego.

An off-duty Los Angeles fireman taking part in a Jeep club outing discovered the bodies of Newton and Azrak, tied together by handcuffs around a pot-bellied stove. Both had been shot in the head.

5 Million Pounds

State Begins Noticing Huge Demand for Oleo

MADISON (AP)—Five million million pounds of colored oleo are coming to Wisconsin.

Although the supermarket substitutes of the yellow butter substitute will not begin until one week from Saturday, state officials are getting ready to distribute tax stamps for the product, and the demand is mammoth.

One firm has ordered 1,320,000 tax stamps.

Another has asked for an even million.

The 5 1/4 cents a pound tax placed on the product already has brought more than a quarter of a million dollars to the state treasury.

Repeal of the nation's last ban on colored oleomargarine was signed into law May 24 after the Assembly voted 67-30 for the lower priced spread and the Senate approved it 19-10.

The oleo manufacturers may start picking up the official tax stamps to stick on their products Wednesday, and so far 5 million stamps have been ordered.

Once the stamps are on the product, colored oleo can come into Wisconsin. But it will still have to stay in the backroom of the supermarket in storage until the first day of July.

The 5 million pound beginning is already three and a half times as high as the amount of uncolored oleo that was sold in Wisconsin in all of 1966.

Conservation Lobbyist Kept From Testifying

Extortion Probe Tied To Bribery Trial of Milwaukee Banker

MADISON (AP)—An attorney for conservation lobbyist Charles Brees, a principal witness in an investigation into lobbying in the legislature, sought today to keep his client from testifying.

Milwaukee Attorney Dominic Frinzi presented Circuit Judge William Sachtlein with a writ of prohibition to prevent Brees temporarily from taking the stand.

Brees is already under indictment on charges of perjury and false swearing. The charges stemmed from a grand jury probe last summer.

Frinzi objected to Brees giving testimony that could relate to charges already facing him. The West Allis lobbyist had been scheduled to appear at today's session.

"They may ask him questions about this other thing," Frinzi said.

Twenty-four witnesses, including eight legislators, have been subpoenaed by Dane County Dist. Atty. James Boll to appear during the week-long probe.

After Monday's first session, Boll would say only: "It's an interesting hearing."

Bribery Trial

Boll had asked Circuit Judge William Sachtlein to begin the investigation to delve deeper into accusations made last month at the bribery trial of Milwaukee banker Howard Meister.

One of Meister's attorneys, Humphrey Lynch of Madison, was quoted as saying Dorothy Effinger tried to extort money from Meister in connection with testimony she was to give in the case. Meister was charged with telling her to bribe a lawmaker for his vote on a branch banking bill.

President had said "there must be progress toward all if there

"As the troubles of the Middle East are great, so also must our purposes be great," Goldberg told the assembly. "It is not enough to defuse the bomb of hostility; we must remove the explosive itself. Our ultimate aim must be nothing less than a stable and durable peace in the Middle East."

'Real Task'

"Our task is far from easy. We may all 'unite for peace'—in the abstract; but our real task is, for the sake of peace, to unite upon a course of action. This course must be rooted both in fidelity to the principles and purposes of the charter and in a clear grasp of the historical events which have led to the present situation."

The Soviet contention is that Israel must immediately evacuate territories it overran in a blitzkrieg against the Arabs, return captured material, make restitution for damages to the Arabs, and be condemned for "aggression."

The United States contends that Israel and the Arabs, as the antagonists in this crisis, must eventually negotiate a durable settlement. The implication is that the United States will not join in any effort to force Israel out of all the territories it has conquered.

No Solution

Goldberg rejected the Soviet resolution as no solution to the basic problems of the tumultuous Middle East. He pointed out that the U.N. Security Council already had refused to accept a resolution which was substantially the same.

Under the Soviet proposal, he said, only Israel would be condemned as an aggressor, "though surely in the light of all the events, both recent and long past, that led up to the fighting, it would be neither equitable nor constructive for this organization to issue a one-sided condemnation."

As for the Soviet demand that Israeli troops be withdrawn from Arab territory, he said: "In other words, the film is to be run backwards through the projector to that point in the early morning of June 5 when hostilities had not yet broken out."

That, Goldberg said, would mean that "once again opposing forces would stand in direct confrontation poised for combat."

Duvalier's Regime May Be in Trouble had to flounder to land as best they could.

The discovery of 10 Haitian bodies washed up onshore was the tipoff to this wave of illegal immigrants, and testimony to what they had endured coming to the Bahamas.

The priest believes most of those who made it ashore were rounded up. Those who escaped, he said, hid along the shore and in brush for a day or two until, by chance or contact with a sympathetic Bahamian, they found another Haitian who could get them jobs. At that point, they became indistinguishable from Haitians who have legally migrated — until asked to produce a passport or work permit.

Power Struggle

The priest said the refugees he has talked to believe Duvalier is involved in a power struggle, but that for economic reasons he may have stopped his close checks on the docks, preferring to have Haitian peasants leave.

Their fate when they are returned is not known. Pindling's government, which had stopped the periodic roundups of Haitians carried on by the previous government, has asked for a meeting with Duvalier's government to put an end to the migration.

So far, however, it has not said whether Haiti replied. The Bahamian government has been very close mouthed on its entire handling of the latest immigration wave, ordering most officials not to talk to newsmen.

Assemblymen present Own Versions

Bits of Road Measure Put Into Bills

MADISON (AP)—State assemblymen began today pasting together their own version of Gov. Warren P. Knowles' traffic safety program.

"I don't know what's going to happen," said Paul Hassett, executive secretary to the governor.

Arguments on seven bills—all issues in the program offered by the governor—were on the Assembly agenda today as a prelude to debate on Knowles' main package.

Majority Leader J. Curtis McKay, R-Cedarburg, said there was absolutely no way to forecast the outcome of the lawmakers' deliberations and decisions.

He and Hassett agreed on only one thing — a highway safety bill of some kind would be passed before the summer recess arrives.

The first two issues on the day's agenda are a uniform minimum drinking age to be set at 21 and the implied con-ed drunken drivers to take intoxication tests. Both were key measures slashed from Knowles' bill by the Assembly Highways Committee.

Republicans and Democrats were expected to caucus in the morning and begin the floor fight in the afternoon. It was considered unlikely that actual debate on the governor's own bill, passed 27-4 by the Senate May 23, would be reached today.

The highways committee recommended 12-0 Friday that a substitute proposal, which cut out the main provisions, be offered to replace the governor's program.

Knowles, in a news conference in which he called the committee's alternate "a hollow shell," said he was afraid his program would not have a chance to be debated.

McKay won consent Friday to

Medical Help Sought By Fond du Lac Man Identified Sunday

MENASHA — A Fond du Lac amnesia victim who disappeared last Wednesday was found by police here Sunday.

The man, 27, had last been seen when he rented a boat near Fond du Lac. The boat was found Thursday near Stony Bay at Oshkosh. The life preserver was floating a short distance away.

Police agencies throughout the state received a teletype description of the man on Friday, stating he was a known amnesia victim and requesting that all railroad, bus and airline terminals be checked to see if he had bought a ticket to leave the area.

A citizen saw the man sitting on a curb at the corner of Water and High streets at 2:12 a.m. Sunday. A police officer questioned the man, who was unable to give his name or address. His wallet contained identification.

While he was being questioned he fell writhing to the ground and asked for medical help. He was taken to Theda Clark Memorial Hospital in a Neenah Fire Department ambulance.

Neenah police, overhearing Menasha officers discussing the case on police radio, suggested comparing his description with that contained in the Fond du Lac teletype message.

The man's wife and brother were notified and took charge.

Bills Will be Introduced

Froehlich Says Legislature Sees Problems of Gasoline Retailers

The need for strengthening the retailers gasoline industry and improving the industry's image in the eyes of the public has been noted by the legislature, members of the Wisconsin association were told Monday.

Retailers Association at the annual meeting was Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, speaker of the Wisconsin Assembly.

"Your continual problem with suppliers, the short margins and low wages that you experience and the trading stamps that many of you are pressured into giving are some of the things that make your position seem less than desirable," the top assemblyman said.

However, several bills will be introduced this year that are steps toward ending or lessening some of these problems, Froehlich added.

Reviews Bills

Among the bills mentioned by the assemblyman was the enforcement bill, which, he said, has the major oil companies concerned. "Could it be they do recognize some of the injustices they deal out to you but they don't want them stopped because they are much too profitable?" the speaker asked.

Another legislation deals with the overly large circus-type price signs commonly seen on corners. Passage of this bill would be great deterrent to price wars, he added.

"And speaking of price wars, why do you have them? How are you pressured into them? What other industry has them as often as you? As consumers we don't have the answers but you dealers should," Froehlich said.

Trading Stamps

'Danger Button' No Answer for Vexed Governor

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — When the secret "danger alarm" flashed outside Gov. Calvin Rampton's private office Monday, an armed state trooper sprinted across the Capitol plaza and burst into the governor's private chambers.

The trooper found the Democratic governor meeting with three Republican state senators. Senate President Haven J. Barlow told the trooper: "He's in trouble, but not in danger." The three leaders of the Republican-dominated State Senate were conferring with Gov. Rampton over 200 gubernatorial appointments which require Senate approval.

During the conference the governor had inadvertently hit the rarely used alarm button which summons emergency help.

Hilbert to Request Bids for 54-Passenger School Bus

Addition to Fleet Necessary to Transport Parochial School Pupils

HILBERT — The board of education decided Monday that library books be increased from $3.50 to $4.50 per pupil and total passenger bus, even though expenditures for periodicals go up from $300 to $600.

The board said it felt the move necessary because of the age of some of the buses in the fleet, with $2,261, of which $1,229 will be used to replace under the Title II. will have to be transported to Members' also recommended

Regarding parochial pupil transportation, Armin Schwalenberg pointed out there may be problems involved in transporting pupils who live in the Brillion and Chilton districts but who attend the Rantoul Trinity Lutheran School which is in the Hilbert district. Sacred Heart School at Sherwood in the Kaukauna district, also has Hilbert district children enrolled.

Frank W. Verhagen, 24, 132 S. John St., Kimberly, pleaded guilty Monday afternoon to a reduced charge of reckless driving.

The motion to reduce the charge came from Dennis Herrington, assistant city attorney.

Two Men Credited With Saving Mental Patient

Two Appleton men, who were leaving for home after work, were credited by police with saving a 31-year-old woman who fell into fast-flowing canal water Monday afternoon.

The woman, a mental patient at St. Elizabeth Hospital, escaped injury but was quite "shaken up," authorities said. The fire department rescue squad was called and the woman, mother of two young children, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by Lindy's Ambulance.

She was pulled from the canal, just south of Island Street, by Steve Williams, 39, 1831 E. Byrd St., and Howard LaLonde 40, 1625 E. Melrose Ave., both employees at Appleton Machine Co., near which the canal flows.

Williams told The Post-Crescent he was leaving work about 3:30 p.m. when he noticed the woman sitting on a wooden ramp leading from an old storage van to Island Street.

Acting Strangely
Thinking the woman was acting strangely, Williams asked her several questions. She said her husband had dropped her off there, and that she was looking for a pen she had lost.

Williams told a reporter he was walking toward his car

Johnson and Kosygin

It could be a tragic loss if the opportunity for President Johnson and Premier Kosygin to meet to discuss world conflicts is not used.

Apparently President Johnson is quite willing for the talks. He came back from Texas and entertained his Australian guest, Prime Minister Holt, at Camp David so as to be readily available to any suggestion of a meeting with the Soviet leader. There may have been behind-the-scenes maneuvers as well, not publicized just in case they were rejected.

But so far the Russian premier has shown no sign of a willingness to meet with President Johnson. The Russians are deeply humiliated by the almost complete collapse of the Arab military forces which they supplied and encouraged. Kosygin's mission to the United Nations is an effort to pick up some of the pieces and save some amount of face by getting a censure of Israel or some sort of pressure for an Israeli retreat to its old borders. And certainly the current Russian high command is well aware that the Cuban missile

Downtown With Personality

Wisdom and vision were exercised by the Appleton Common Council when it gave final approval recently to the last phase of the College Avenue reconstruction program — landscaping and street-scaping to give the downtown a new dimensional look.

While there was some dissent, there were really no losers when it came to making the decision to proceed with the plans recommended by the city's St. Louis planning consultants and the Milwaukee firms contracted to custom design the practical and economical program for adding trees and other greenery to the central city scene.

Giving the experts the go-ahead represented a victory for all the citizens of Appleton, and especially our progress-minded business people, who recognized

Israel States Its Position

The speech of Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol to his Parliament in which he said Israel will decide what territorial gains it will keep from its lightning victory over the adjoining Arab states came as no surprise.

In the art of diplomacy, it is only natural that Israel would establish its territorial gains from the war as the point at which to bargain from in the coming negotiations, whether they be within the United Nations or in direct talks with the Arab states of Egypt, Syria, and Jordan. But aside from this strategic purpose of the prime minister's message, there will be few in the western world at least who will quarrel with his view that "the international community be informed that the situation which existed until now shall not be allowed to return."

Prime Minister Eshkol did not have to say that a United Nations peace-keeping force dating from 1956 hostilities was supposed to be a buffer between Israel and its Arab neighbors but was promptly withdrawn by United Nations Secretary General U Thant at the request of Egypt's President Nasser with an explanation that the UN had no authority to keep the forces on the lines if one of the parties involved did not want it. He did not have to say either that the western nations, the United States in particular, made a lot of statements about freedom of international waters as it applied to the Gulf of Aqaba but that it was the seizing of the lands at the mouth of the gulf by Israeli paratroopers which has assured restoration of this lifeline to the country.

The other territorial factors in the eventual negotiations will be much more difficult to define in the United Nations.

Looking Backward

'Proper Movement,' Says Crescent

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for June 20, 1967.

The State Editorial Convention, by a large majority, adopted a resolution asking Congress to repeal the prohibitory duty on importation of foreign printing paper, and requesting the Senators and Representatives from this State to favor such a repeal.

Quite an interesting debate sprang up on the adoption of the resolution, and an attempt was made to arouse partisan prejudice against it, but the prohibitory character of the existing duty and the monopoly created by the manufacturers was so clearly shown that, notwithstanding nearly two thirds of the editors and publishers present conduct "Republican" papers, the attempt failed and the resolution was carried overwhelmingly.

25 YEARS AGO
Tuesday, June 16, 1942.

War reports were that the Japanese were suffering heavy losses off the Aleutian Islands, Alaska. U.S. Army Air Force fighters and the RAF were operating together for the first time in the Mediterranean. The fierce Libyan Battle moved eastward toward Tobruk, both sides reported to be suffering heavy losses.

Martin Van Hulst, 62, became the new "schut" king at Hollandtown when his shot at the "bird" was the 182nd and the one to knock it down. Van Hulst won the championship 20 years previously and had been taking part in the St. Francis Society event for 27 years.

Two Neenah boys were named officers of their respective mythical cities at Badger Boys State at Ripon College. Eugene Johnson, Neenah High student, was elected treasurer of the "city" of Farwell, while James Pickard, student at Wayland Academy, was elected assessor for his "city" of Rusk.

Miss Dianne Hatch, Appleton, was crowned Miss Milwaukee in ceremonies the previous evening in that city. A graduate of Appleton High School, Miss Hatch entered the contest through the Patricia Stevens Modeling School which she was attending. She was to compete for the Miss Wisconsin title.

James Lietien was general chairman for the annual family picnic of the Father Fitzmaurice Council, Knights of Columbus.

fiasco led to the ouster of Khrushchev a few months later.

Internal politics aside, however, it could be to the great advantage of the Soviet Union as well as the United States and perhaps even the future of the world if President Johnson and Premier Kosygin could meet to discuss not only the tinder box in the Middle East but the ever-growing conflagration in Southeast Asia. Kosygin apparently was snubbed by American leaders when he tried during a visit to England last winter to encourage a halt in the bombing raids on North Vietnam with a virtual pledge from Hanoi that it would then be interested in negotiations. Perhaps Kosygin cannot be blamed for his lack of interest now in helping the United States find a way out of Vietnam.

But the stature of both President Johnson and Premier Kosygin could be tremendously raised by their personal efforts to find permanent solutions for the problems of both the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

Man's stiff-necked fear of humiliation and loss of prestige may destroy him yet.

that a downtown with personality today will survive the future during an era where large outlying commercial developments threaten the physical and economic well-being of the region's central business district.

The people charged with the responsibility of planning and carrying out the Avenue reconstruction are to be congratulated for a job well done to date, and we are confident the landscapers and street-scrappers will add the perfect touch and give us a warm, attractive downtown — making it a Midwest showcase.

With all the major policy decisions made, the Fox Cities region is now anxiously awaiting completion and formal opening of Appleton's "new" College Avenue early this fall. It should be a gala occasion for all, including those who said it couldn't be done.

Israel now has control of heights near the Sea of Galilee often used for Syrian shelling of Israeli settlements before the latest war, lands on the west bank of the Jordan River and all of the once-divided city of Jerusalem, and the Gaza Strip, the base for Egyptian raids on Israel.

The Israeli and Arab claims to these lands date from the establishment of Israel after World War II and truce lines which resulted from the Arab-Israeli war of 1949.

The Soviet Union is going to make a lot of points in the Arab world with its insistence in the United Nations that Israel must return to the truce lines which were in effect before this month's war, though the fact that Russia was willing to let the Arab states fight their own military battles once the outcome of the fighting was evident would seem difficult to overlook among the more moderate Arab leaders.

President Johnson has said that the United Nations is the forum in which a final settlement must be negotiated. This certainly is correct, at least for the first attempt, and will reduce for the record any unilateral role of the United States. Russia seems to be saying that it is thinking along the same lines as indicated by its decision to go into the General Assembly in hopes of winning a majority because of the total of African and Asian states it might be able to influence.

The well planned and executed war has left Israel in a position of power for bargaining and certainly there must be agreement that it cannot just return to the armed truce conditions which were the fact before this month's war. In particular, this is true for gaining an ironclad understanding for the free passage of all shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba, as well as the Suez Canal.

Kraft Feels Marshall Appointment Won't Improve High Court Stature

BY JOSEPH KRAFT
WASHINGTON — The appointment of Thurgood Marshall to the Supreme Court is an unhappily fit climax to a term which has shown the Court to be hung up on outworn liberal and moralistic doctrines of the past.

Mr. Marshall may not be a bad justice. By all accounts he has generous sympathies, common sense, and a feel for the political issues which bulk so largely in the work of the Court. But Mr. Marshall will not bring to the Court penetrating analysis nor distinction of mind.

Beyond any doubt, Mr. Marshall was appointed because he is a Negro; not just any Negro, not even the best qualified Negro. He was appointed because he is a Negro well-known to the Negro community for action on behalf of Negro causes. He was appointed, in other words, on the outmoded principle of ethnic representation, and for years to come his seat on the Court will probably be a Negro seat.

Court Suffers —

Perhaps that is the price for generations of unfair treatment which find current expression in the case of Adam Clayton Powell and the wave of racial rioting. But it is not, at this particular time, as small a price as it may seem.

For the Supreme Court has recently suffered grievously from a shortage of penetrating analytic minds. More and more it has seemed to be ruled not so much by the internal logic of cases as by a desire to reach results in line with a simple good guys versus bad guys morality.

In the rare cases which present themselves in such simple terms, the Court speaks out with clarity and sweep. A good example is the ringing 9-0 decision last Monday which found "no doubt" that a state law against interracial marriage "violates the central principle" of the Constitution.

But most cases involve far more sophisticated issues. And here the Court has frequently followed its emotional bent to dubious results, often speaking with divided tongue and in obscure tone.

Eavesdropping Ruling
In the field of criminal procedure, the Court has been hung up between those who want a Mr. Clean image for the law and those who believe the police must be given sharper tools to do their work.

In that vein, last Monday, by a curiously indecisive 5-4 ruling, the Court declared unconstitutional a New York statute which permitted court-authorized eavesdropping on suspected criminals.

The majority opinion by a judgment against the Associated Press.

The ostensible distinction was the difference between a wire service and a magazine — a matter on which the Court has no special competence. It is very hard not to believe that the football coach, a good guy, prevailed over the right-wing general who would be, in the eyes of Chief Justice Warren, a bad guy.

Similar patterns of unresolved claims of principle eventually being decided on a good guy versus bad guy basis cropped up last Monday in decisions concerning civil rights and anti-trust. In the civil rights field, the court by a 5-4 majority seemingly rooted in dislike of "black power" techniques, approved a 5-day jail sentence meted out to Martin Luther King in Birmingham, Ala.

As to anti-trust, in the Schwinn bicycle case the Court appeared to hand down a ruling that moved two ways at once. It forbids big manufacturers to police the selling arrangements of their dealers. But it seems to authorize smaller manufacturers to prevent their selling agents from passing on products to the big discount houses.

To me, anyway, this thicket of contractions announces the need for a new rationale in the Supreme Court. But for that, the Court will have to wait at least until the President's next appointment.

(Copyright, 1967)

retiring Justice Tom Clark obviously left room for some kind of statute authorizing bugging. But at the same time it declared, in the best liberal rhetoric, that: "Few threats to liberty exist which are greater than that posed by use of eavesdropping devices."

In the field of libel, the Court has been divided on the claims of the right of privacy as against the freedom of the press. In that spirit last week it settled, by 5-4 votes with Chief Justice Warren as the swing man, two libel cases in exactly opposite directions.

Bad Guy vs. Good Guy
Wallace Butts, the former Georgia football coach was awarded a judgment against the publishers of the Saturday Evening Post. But Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker, the retired right-wing officer, was denied Should All Increases In School Taxes be Absorbed by State?

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — It is easy to dismiss the jockeying in the legislature on the issue of additional state aids for local schools as maneuver for partisan advantage, which it clearly is. By pressing for an additional $30 million or more for the support of local schools which is not now available in the state's revenue scheme, the Democrats are continuing their basic theme of painting Gov. Knowles as "the property tax governor," in their phrase.

Wyngaard

Yet what they are doing is standard practice. This is why the Republicans tolerantly permitted the debate in the Assembly to continue for a couple of hours the other day although by the admission of both sides, not a single vote was changed by the flood of angry, appealing, and occasionally eloquent words. The Republicans remember well enough that it was only recently that they were indulging in the same parliamentary subtleties to embarrass Democratic governors Nelson and Reynolds.

The politics of party advantage and contrived publicity aside however, there was a theme running through the Democratic argument that is significant.

SEE BIG TAX HIKE

In effect, the Democrats were arguing for a freeze on local school taxes and the acceptance by the state of a commitment to finance all future expansion of local school budgets, of whatever dimensions. Again and again they said that without their supplementary appropriation bill the average school tax rate in the state would rise by at least $3 per $1,000 during the next two years.

That would be intolerable they said in a long series of speeches. The stretch in the property tax has been exhausted, they maintained.

The only possible conclusion from such a position and argument is that the minority party is proposing that all future enlargement of local school spending shall be the responsibility of the state taxpayer. Such growth will be considerable, at least for as many years ahead as can now be projected. The new expenditure liability for the state, under such a plan, would also be breathtaking.

The point has been raised here before that the dependence of local government upon the state taxing power has grown so swiftly and the appetite for further state support is so enormous that there will soon be a question whether "local" government is accurately named.

TWO BIG QUESTIONS
Will it be "local" government if the state gradually takes over the responsibility for producing most of the dollars that are spent in the towns, cities, villages, counties and school districts? Or will these be independent entities only in name, and in fact and practice administrative agencies of the state government?

The time is closer than many persons evidently know. An executive office statement last week observed that more than $1.1 billion will be paid out of the state treasury to local governments during the next two years. Through a striking coincidence that is about equal to the state's general fund budget for the same period which has been widely publicized as the highest in state history, and represents a jump of about 24 per cent from the last biennium.

The school aid issue is easily blurred. Some dispatches have said that the new budget provides no "improvement" in the school aid appropriation. That is true to the extent that the equalization formula has not been changed. The same amount of subsidy will be paid on behalf of each enrolled student. But the number of students is rising. This has brought about a hefty increase of $70 million in the total school aid appropriation, about a third of the general fund of the state for all purposes.

FINANCES BIG SHARE
The state now finances 35 per cent of the costs of operating all of the elementary and high schools, the highest ratio ever, and surely not a niggardly amount.

Yet the Democrats have probably identified the issue in future state finance policy (as the Republicans would be doing if they happened today to hold a minority position.) The pressure for ever more reliance upon the state treasury won't be easily resisted. One day there will be a state school system in all except name.

Here Are Additional Tips for Announcers

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS
Why don't the radio and television announcers learn that:

—There is no "babble" in the "Tower of Babel," which wasn't so called for the babbling of tongues.

—There is no "yuh" in "avenue"; there is no "back" in "abacus"; and there is no "ouch" in "debauch."

—There are four syllables, not three, in "decorative"; there are four syllables, not three, in "comfortable"; and there are only three syllables, not four, in "mischievous."

—There is no "bat" in "noncombatant"; there is no "ridge" in "dirigible"; and there is no "knee" in "incognito."

—There is no "coop" in "recuperate"; there is no "pair" in "irreparable"; and there is no "hero" in "heroism."

—There is no "spite" in "respite"; there is no "you" in "tremolo."

—There is a "g" sound in "recognize," "strength," "length," and many other words.

—There is no "hose" in "hoisery"; there is no "on" in "envoy"; and there is no "ham" in "Bethlehem."

—There is no "home" in "homage"; there is no "comb" in "comely"; and there is no "long" in "longevity."

—There are no such words as "disasterous," "incidently,"

"greevius," "interduction," or "momento."

—The adjective "frequent" is pronounced with the stress on the first syllable; but the verb, "frequent," must be pronounced with the stress of the second syllable, as it almost never is.

—The French word, "forte," has only one syllable, not two, and nothing sounds more ignorant and affected than using a foreign word and mispronouncing it, as: "Arranging flowers happens to be my fortay."

—Chopin's "Minute Waltz" has nothing to do with a minute of time, but is "minute" the way a small steak is minute; it is not to be played in 60 seconds, nor pronounced as if it were.

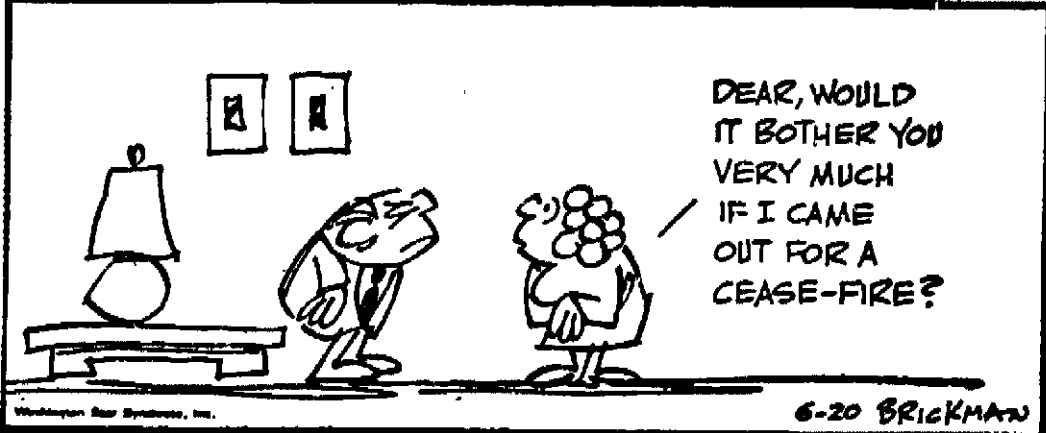

—There is no "wine" in "genuine"; there is no "quip" in "equipage"; and there is no "phony" in "euphony."

—There are three syllables, not two, in "champion" (which, on the lips of all athletes and most sports announcers, rhymes with "damn bean"); there are only three syllables, not four, in "athletic" (which, on the lips of most athletes, becomes "athaletic"); there are only four syllables, not five, in "positive"; and there are three syllables, not two, in "probably."

Tall Swedish Soldiers Keep Getting Taller
STOCKHOLM (AP) — The tall Swede is growing taller again. Swedish military authorities have discovered. Recruits drafted from the 1963, 1964 and 1965 age groups were on average 5 feet 10 inches tall — about an inch shorter than the average over the previous 10-year period. But the latest draftees are measuring up to former standards again — 5 feet 11 inches.

Executive Family Likes to Speak Their Own Minds

CHAPTER THREE
10:00 a.m.
Everything in the White House is inherited. Lynda Johnson's room once belonged to Caroline Kennedy. Luci's Coke bar (before her marriage) was Harry Truman's poker den; it was also a Kennedy schoolroom. Prior to that, it was what it was intended to be: a solarium. The mansion never really belongs to anyone — only the ghosts now last more than two terns.

Lynda Johnson sits on the bed on her crossed ankles, thinking. The bedspread is white; a yellow dust ruffle with flowers adds additional femininity to the bed. The drapes are pinned back, and there is a view of the front lawn and Pennsylvania Avenue.

A small tape recorder plays music. There is a matching bed a few feet from the one on which she sits. This is for books and records and studies and girl friends. The music is an admixture of Mantovani and Nat King Cole. On the shelves, the knowledge this girl seeks is on display: history and poetry.

Speaks Mind

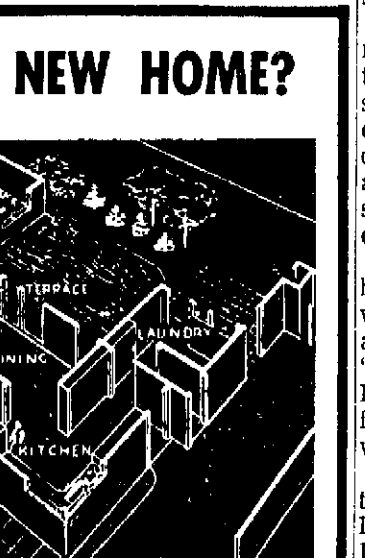

Like the rest of the family, Lynda is accustomed to speaking her mind: "I'd rather play bridge than have a date. Fellows get scared off by the press. I don't know what the future will bring. I must always be careful that a bad press doesn't upset my parents." The phone between the beds rings, and she talks for a moment to a girl friend. "Oh," she says, "I'm not too arty. I mean not much on opera. I like museums and operas." Texas is the place of preference, but the LBJ Ranch, Lynda feels, is right, as long as he's kind to her. Still, it is wonderful if you invite people you like. Then the natural beauty of the ranch comes alive for her. "I don't like to walk, ride, or swim by myself." She is a tall, slender girl with thoughtful cocoa-brown eyes. "I'm the more studious, the Hour by hour events in the United States are detailed from firsthand knowledge by distinguished author-reporter Jim Bishop. Mr. Bishop spent 11 days with President Lyndon B. Johnson and his family, from L.B.J.'s rising at 7 a.m. until lights were out at midnight, and shared Presidential experiences. His vivid account of activities in a typical 17-hour Presidential day is being published exclusively in this area in The Post-Crescent.

Likes Books

"I like books. Maybe I inherit this from my mother," Lynda giggles. "Somebody said that at their wedding they exchanged books and their tastes were so dissimilar that each one took back his own to read. On television, Mother likes 'Gun-smoke.' She thinks divorce is mean not much on opera. I like museums and operas." Texas is the place of preference, but the head and was smart enough to grow up and make a living for herself."

'Calm Soul'

Luci's deepest admiration is reserved for her mother. "She pulls us all together. The rest of us have tempers, but Mother is the calm soul who smooths us down and makes us feel closer than ever."

Luci's conversion to Catholicism is, in a way, a personal indication of adulthood and independence. Her marriage is of utmost importance, not only because of the beauty of love-in-sacrament, but because it is the final step in a campaign by the youngest in the family to assert herself.

'Her Refuge'

This is her den, her refuge, her joy. When her mother tried to help by buying chintz for curtains and couches, the independent Luci asked to choose any books in the room which she had not read.

"You see," she says, "I love my mother and father. And now that I am grown up, I understand them more and more. I don't even drink or smoke, out of respect for them. And what about Pat? I am Lyndon Johnson's daughter and whatever we do will reflect on them."

This too is mere monologue, because Luci is sensible, quick-witted, and sure-footed. "I look at it this way," Luci says, "when they get out of here, Lynda and I will have some forty years or so to do as we wish."

Lynda. Now there is another thought. Dear, darling sister Lynda. "I do lots of things Lynda wouldn't think of doing. She wouldn't think of having her ears pierced. Mine are. I started innocent little dates at the age of eleven. I've had lots of boy friends. She hasn't."

New Understanding

"When I was 14," Luci adds, "I dated this boy. He was anti-Johnson. When he heard that I felt a distance between me and my father, he tried to widen it. Almost automatically, I started to defend Daddy. My father was forced to do the things he did, and live the life he lived, the more I began to understand him."

'What's New'

Actually he is in the anteroom of his personal secretary, Juanita Roberts. "What's new?" Mrs. Roberts smiles and hands over a few letters which have just arrived. He glances at the petition between us may have been started by my father. He of Victoria McCammon. "That's a good hairdo," he says. Miss McCammon glances up briefly from her rapid typing and says, "Good morning, Mr. President."

Pretty Vicki is to be married, and the President knows it. The institution of marriage, in truth, slows President Johnson's work. He acquires the services of those who he feels are best qualified for White House positions and, in time, they either get married and leave, or they are married and want to get home for dinner.

President's Office

The President moves on through the white door to his office. The morning sun brightens the big pale green rug, which is rimmed with fifty embossed stars with the seal of the President in the center, and the sound of soft music fills the room with neutral melodies, as it does so many of the offices. There are vases of fresh flowers judiciously set around the room.

A painting of Henry Clay and one of Andrew Johnson stare solemnly at whatever happens in this place.

The mahogany desk, made in the Senate workshop around the turn of the twentieth century, has a green leather top and doors flanking a screened center. On it are a cup of pencils, a yellow pad of foolscap, two telephones, a date pad, a wooden tray for mail, a pen, a framed schedule of appointments for today, and a small thermometer. Lyndon Johnson used this desk and its big green leather chair a long time as Senator.

Signing Table

by the American flag and the President's banner. The table holds a thermos of water and a brace of glasses on a tray. There is also a white telephone plus half a dozen reference books dealing with government and legislation.

On a marble fireplace across the room are framed photos of Mrs. Johnson and the daughter, Mrs. Two settees flank the fireplace, with a coffee table between. The President — like his predecessor — has a rocker facing the settees. To the left of his desk, there is a console of three television sets, and he has Associated Press and United Press International news tickers.

Anything of importance is placed on the foolscap for his attention. When the President cannot find something, he speaks to Juanita Roberts through a green microphone standing on his desk, and she usually answers, "On your yellow tablet, Mr. President." A Presidential aide, Marvin Watson, opens the door on the President's left — the door through which most visitors approach the Chief Executive — and he says, "Jack Valenti is waiting in the 'Little Lounge.'" Johnson nods.

Quiet Talk

The President leaves his desk and walks through a door to exchange greetings with his old friend, and relaxes on a couch. They talk about Valenti's new job as motion picture czar.

Marvin Watson sticks his head into the room and says the Under Secretary and Assistant Secretary of Defense are in the Fish Room. The President says goodbye to Valenti and returns to his office to scan a sample of unsolicited mail. This is important to Johnson, as it was to Kennedy.

Sometimes Bill Hopkins, who is in charge of Presidential mail, in collusion with Mrs. Roberts, will slip into the pile a letter or two which they know will lift the President's spirit. He stands thumbing through the pile and stops at one which appears to be all heart and no judiciously set around the room.

"Dear Mr. President: Here I am sending you this picture of Raul. He is my son. We are very proud of him for we are a big family of ten children. Daddy and me we are very proud of him. Until three years ago we came to California where we had some help from the children in summer in the crops and keep them in school. We had to stay in a labor camp for we don't have a House to live in. "With a big family it is not easy. We don't have much place for them to study. And Raul came up with a scholarship 3000 dollars a year where only millionaires go. seems like a dream to us and still its true. He is going to Harvard University in Sep. with God's help. Mr.

President we as parents want to thank you for the big opportunities that we all have in America. We are Mexicans from Texas. And that no matter who we are rich or poor, we all have the same right if we work for it . . ."

Check on Boy

Mr. Johnson calls Mrs. Roberts on his intercom. "I want somebody to check on this boy mentioned in the letter. If there is any information, clippings in local newspapers for instance, I want to see them. Also remind me to write a reply to his mother." He drops the letter and leaves.

In the Fish Room, applause breaks out as the President crosses the hall and steps to a lectern. Twenty men, department executives ranking immediately under Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, come to their feet.

The President feels that in the pyramid of bureaucracy, it is easy for the second-echelon men to feel unappreciated, because they seldom see the President. He waves them to their chairs and, with no prepared notes, begins to speak in a soft tone. "I'm in a sentimental mood and want you to know that I have never seen a more selfless, competent group. I recognize it and am thankful for it and want to say so on behalf of all Americans."

Extemporaneous

The speech becomes more of an extemporaneous monologue, and as thoughts come to mind, Lyndon Johnson enunciates them with considerable impact.

His words nail down policy for the defense departments: Korea and Vietnam prove that the Soviet Union and China have always misjudged American intentions. To speak of peace and reason and an unwillingness to take a firm stand.

One more thing. "If De Gaulle wants us to get out of his country, I am going to do as I would do if I was a guest in your house. I'm going to take my hat and leave, as a guest should. But we plan to be doing business with France long after De Gaulle is dead and gone." The monologue comes to an end. "Remember, what affects you affects me. What is a good day for you is a good day for me. The best we can do, gentlemen, is to serve intelligently and loyally." The hands release the lectern. Applause echoes against the rounded walls.

'Six Minutes'

At his desk, the President has six minutes of open time. He scans reports of damage done by bombers over North Viet Nam. The reconnaissance photos are good. A report by General Westmoreland is digested.

The President phones his Cabinet secretary, Bob Kintner, and asks him to be in the office in five minutes. The news wires are searched for fresh news. Kintner peeks in, and is waved to a chair beside the desk. Luci looks in from Mrs. Roberts' office and Mr. Johnson beams, gets up, and walks across the room for the morning kiss, hug and grunt. His daughter says that she has lots of shopping to do and waves and says, "Toodles."

Marvin Watson returns to the President. "The secretaries are in the Cabinet Room." The President looks up from the television sets. "All right. I want to talk to Bob for a minute."

Thieves Carnival Stage Gem in Guthrie Setting

Cast Ramps With Zest Through Farcical, Nonsensical Plot of French Dramatist

BY JACK RUDOLPH
Post-Crescent News Service
MINNEAPOLIS — A young company in a still new playhouse has taken an old play by a youthful author — Frenchman Jean Anouilh was only 22 and completely unknown when he wrote it back in 1932 — and polished it into an evening of utterly delightful shenanigans at the Tyrone Guthrie Theater.

"Thieves Carnival," a "comédie ballet," flashes some of the wit of Moliere. It's as corny as the Keystone Kops and the frothy "Comedie" carries its years as lightly as some of its characters flaunt disguises.

Plot But So What? The play has a plot but the story is so farcically nonsensical there's no point in telling it. Suffice to say, it involves a trio of French thieves whose bungling is equalled only by their charm, two young heiresses and a pair of aging and bored English aristocrats thrown together in a fading French resort town.

There are touches of sadness in the pathetic attempt of Lady Hurl to escape the boredom of satiation but anyone looking for deep philosophical truth therein is tilting at a windmill with predictable results. Real people couldn't be quite so silly, but the world would be a more cheerful place if they were.

The fun is in the zest with which the cast frisks through "Carnival's" ridiculous situations. Everybody on stage has such a hilarious time the audience is swept along in a wave of laughter.

Acting Pure Delight Of them all, none romps so amiably as Katherine Squire in the role of Lady Hurl. One of the few real oldtimers in the company, Miss Squire is a total delight. She sets a fast pace, but not too fast for the rest of the cast.

Two other Guthrie veterans, Paul Ballentyne and Lee Richardson match her step for step. Ballentyne is hilarious as the bumbling Lord Edgard and Richardson is an unruffled if not very efficient crook. Both perform with a bored yet feathery touch.

Helen Carey (a highly promising Marquette University product) and Robin Gammell are most appealing as the romantic young heiress and apprentice thief who really isn't up to his profession. What eventually happens to them couldn't happen to nicer young people.

As the world-weary Eva, Patricia Elliott is an authentic, flat-chested, hip-swiveling 1930 sophisticate. Her blasé indifference is more than a match for the wiles of Philip Kerr, whose flair for disguises is handicapped by his inability to come up with the right set of whiskers.

Deceptively Difficult "Thieves Carnival" is a deceptively difficult play to present on a thrust stage, but the Guthrie is equal to the challenge. It is a beautifully and crisply staged production.

Not the least of its charms are the music and dancing. Clarinetist Dave Karr doesn't have many lines, but his chuckling licorice stick bubbles with sly laughter, never more so than when playing for the dances.

One is a tricky little square dance that erupts in a shimmy by Miss Elliott that must have the late Gilda Grey wiggling in her grave. The other, a tango at the final curtain, is pure witchery.

Betty Grable Flashes Her Famous Smile as she poses in costume for the lead in the Broadway musical "Hello Dolly." She started in the role June 12 in New York City, succeeding Martha Raye in the part. (AP Wirephoto)

RFK's Life, Future, on CBS Reports

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 Channels 2-12; 10:30-11:30 Channel 7 — CBS Reports is titled simply "Robert F. Kennedy," but the production is anything but simple. The program looks into the political life of the Junior Senator from New York, particularly his ability to provoke extremes, pro or con, among voters, and the potentials of his political future. Although this was the purpose of the telecast, it goes a bit beyond taking in scenes of RFK, the man, the father and the boss, with scenes shot at his McLean (Va.) home, in his New York and Washington offices, and on both the campaign and ski trails.

7:30-9:30 Channels 4-5 — The Girl from U.N.C.L.E. has a fantastic plot about a plan to sack the Vatican treasury, concocted by a wacky Italian prince, effectively played by Edwardo Ginepro. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7-12 — Once more Dakarti is concerned with a trigger-happy hunter. Marshall Thompson certainly has his problems with Doris Dowling who won't keep away from the big game. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-6-9 — Combat's "A Child's Game" is a curious drama and a new twist to the usual war games. This one may give you the shudders since it concerns a trio of German teen-agers who will fight to the death to defend a farmhouse Sergeant Saunders and his men want to take over. (R)

7:30-8 Channels 4-5 — Pretty Patricia Harty has to wiggle herself out of another slippery situation on Occasional Wife. The poor girl is living it up in a discotheque, without her "make-believe husband," when she is spotted. (R)

7:30-8:30 Channels 11-6-9 — If you don't mind overlooking a few reasonable flaws in the script The Invaders provides a better-than-average saga with James Whitmore largely responsible. He is a man with a few grudges, some that he'll tell you about and some that you'll find out about later. (R)

8-10 Channels 4-5 — "A Touch of Larceny" on Tuesday Night at the Movies is one of those sly, but well-motivated comedies, which has James Mason as a British Naval officer who only has eyes for Vera Miles, an American beauty. When he discovers she is on the verge of marrying British ambassador George Sanders, he goes to extremes, hitting the front pages and trying to win some extra loot in a libel suit.

Deadline Set to Cash Postal Certificates

BY SYLVIA PORTER
If you are among the 600,000 Americans who still have an estimated $90,000,000 deposited in U.S. Postal Savings certificates throughout the nation, Friday, June 30 is your deadline for cashing in these certificates at your post office.

After that date, all unclaimed funds will be sent to the U.S. Treasury to be held in trust, and while you still will be able to redeem postal savings certificates, the process easily could involve annoying red tape for your postmaster and delays for you before you get the money you have deposited.

Moreover, if you are among those who still have money stashed away in postal savings accounts, remember that these funds have been earning no interest whatever since April 26, when abolition of the system went into effect.

Why has this once enormously popular savings institution, through which millions of Americans have saved billions of dollars, been abolished?

Because it has become an anachronism.

Set Up In 1911
The system was set up nearly two generations ago, in 1911. Its vitally important original purpose was to attract cash savings out of cookie jars and mattresses of the nation over — and pump them into the U.S. economy.

Its original usefulness to the huge waves of immigrants arriving in the U.S. was to extend the American tradition of saving at the local post office.

Banks were largely confined in those days to the nation's big cities. Throughout the U.S., and especially in rural areas, the post office, open six days a week, was the only convenient place to deposit savings. It was just about the only place where an American working away from home could conveniently deposit savings.

But over and beyond these factors, the most important lure of the Postal Savings System in its early years was the fact that it offered a safe place to deposit savings. In the early 1900s, the public had little confidence in U.S. private banks, with good reason. Banks were virtually unregulated, deposits were uninsured and bank failures were far too frequent.

Hit Record in 1947
Deposits in the Postal Savings System grew to a record $3.4 billion in 1947 and the number of depositors also reached a record 4 million-plus in that year. One key reason was that during World War II U.S. commercial banks dropped their interest rates on savings to a pittance 1 per cent — while postal savings continued to pay 2 per cent.

Today private banks and savings institutions have spread from city to suburb and small town. Individual savings accounts are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. or Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., for up to $15,000. Failures are now comparatively rare, and when failures do occur today, most depositors don't lose a penny because most institutions are federally-insured and most accounts do not exceed $15,000.

Painfully Out of Line
In addition, the institutions are open longer and at more convenient hours. Banking-by-

Former Kiwanis Governor Dies

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Derral L. Clark, 59, insurance executive and former Wauwatosa school official, died Sunday of an apparent heart attack.

He was executive secretary of the Milwaukee Association of Insurance Agents and a trustee of Kiwanis International at the time of his death. He also was a past governor of Kiwanis Wisconsin-Upper Michigan district.

A native of Almond, Wis., Clark taught accounting in Marinette and from 1940 to 1958 was assistant superintendent of schools at Wauwatosa.

Lottery Director
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Ernest T. Bird, who retired recently after 25 years as an FBI agent, has been named director of the New York State lottery.

Moreover, the traditional 2 per cent interest paid on postal savings deposits is now painfully out of line. Rates paid on savings by banks and savings institutions range from 4 to 5 per cent and more.

At 2 per cent, you're actually losing money on postal savings now. The rate of rise in our cost of living plus federal taxes on interest more than wipe out this minor return.

In short, postal savings have become, next to the cookie jar, the least profitable and least sophisticated way to save money in our nation today. Go at once to your postmaster, withdraw your accumulated savings and deposit the money elsewhere.

Doctor Gives Approved Vaccination Schedule

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.
Here is a schedule of vaccinations to follow from infancy to extreme age.

There may be occasional reasons for delaying or advancing immunization, so do not be upset if your doctor finds need of such modifications of the schedule.

However, this has been checked and approved by outstanding authorities. It will be worth clipping out and saving. Of course, further vaccines doubtless will develop as time goes on, but this covers the basic list of necessary ones now.

4 months — Second quadruple (or triple plus oral polio).

5 months — Third quadruple (or triple plus oral polio).

4 years — Quadruple or triple tetanus toxoid is wise whenever an injury breaks the skin, particularly if it is a puncture wound suffered out of doors.

Your doctor can keep you posted on the advisability of polio boosters.

For foreign travel: Smallpox required every 3 years for re-entry into the United States. Special vaccinations such as typhoid, cholera, typhus will depend on the area visited.

Dear Dr. Molner: Why does milk cause cramps and diarrhea? Would goat's milk act the same? — Mrs. L.D.

Possibly you are allergic to milk. Some people are. The only way to know whether goat's milk would be better would be to try it.

Note to Mrs. A.N.: Bronchogenic carcinoma means a type of cancer (carcinoma) which started in the bronchial tubes.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Molner in care of the Post-Crescent for the booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a year, and a repeat smallpox vaccination every five years provides safety. A booster of that is, including the three major strains of the vaccine, or single-strain vaccine may be used. In that case, Type 1 is given first, Type 3 given second and Type 2 last.)

10 months — Measles vaccine.

12 months — Smallpox vaccination, if it has not been given earlier, plus tuberculin test.

3 years — Tuberculin test.
